Spectacular $200,000 Fire Sweeps Warehouse

Firemen Fight Blaze Four Hours; Eight Alarms Turned In

Three Men Injured as Flames Feed on Waste Cotton in Murphy Avenue Building.

A spectacular eight-alarm fire, fed by more than 3,000 bales of waste cotton, early last night swept the top two floors of a five-story warehouse at 1100 Murphy avenue, S. W., causing damage estimated at nearly $200,000. Three persons were slightly injured.

Throughout the more than four hours firemen fought the blaze the danger of a collapse of the tall brick walls was imminent and cast an ever-present spectre of danger over the nearly 100 firemen fighting the flames.

Attracted by the sullen flames and the dense smoke that billowed from the upper windows, more than 3,000 spectators lined streets in all directions.

30 Policemen There.
Eighteen pieces of fire-fighting equipment, from more than half the city's stations, were called to the scene within an hour. More than 30 policemen, under the command of Chief Hornsby and Captain "Buck" Weaver assisted in handling the crowds.

First discovered by P. D. Rawlins, night watchman for the Henry Chanin Corporation, which leases the top two floors, the fire gained quick headway despite the early arrival of firemen.

Mass of Flame.
Within an hour the fifth floor was a raging mass of flames that quickly spread among the inflammable cotton waste on the top two floors. Tons of water sprayed by firemen halted the downward march of the flames.

Damage on the lower floors from water, however, was extremely heavy. There, more than $250,000 in goods, principally canned, belonging to the Piggly Wiggly Food Company, was expected to be nearly a total loss from the water damage, according to Piggly Wiggly officials. Extent of damage to the building could not be determined. The owner is Mrs. S. Rutherford, of Forsyth, Ga.

The injured persons were listed as Leo Myers, Atlanta Journal employee, who was burned when flashlight powder exploded in his hand; Captain Jim Bowen, of Company 1, who suffered a cut hand, and Fireman M. L. Pickett, who suffered internal injuries from strain while pulling a hose.

DETROIT, June 21.—(AP)—Preliminary figures place Detroit's 1940 population at 1,618,549, an increase of nearly 50,000 from the 1,568,662 reported in 1930, the district office of the United States Census Bureau announced today.

F.D.R. Defends Trading Plan For Americas

Program for Sales of $2,000,000,000 Called Defense Step.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt branded as crooked today some critics of a plan for a Pan-American economic organization—a plan which he disclosed as contemplating co-operative sales of approximately $2,000,000,000 of American staple export commodities outside the western hemisphere.

And he attributed partisan motives to some who have been speaking their minds about his appointment of two Republicans, Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson, as his navy and war secretaries.

His smiling, soft-spoken manner was far less savage than the words he selected. But there was every indication that he was unwilling to shrug aside criticism of two steps which he regards as part of a program to marshal physical and economic resources of the Americas against any extension of the influence of the axis powers across the Atlantic.

Part of Defense Plan.
Measures for Pan-American economic co-operation, he said in a formal statement, are part of a program of "economic defense" supplementing the military defense program.

"They are intended," he said, "as a further safeguard for the peace of this hemisphere and as a means of protecting our economy and the economies of the other American republics from the repercussions of the disturbed international situation."

Unfortunately, the President told reporters, some people are crooked enough to say the economic program means the importation into the United States of the entire Argentine beef surplus.

Actually, he said, it means the pooling of staple crops grown in common and getting them off this continent.

As for the Republican additions to the cabinet, Mr. Roosevelt remarked that he was thinking last night of the differences between people.

There are those who think in terms of patriotic motives, he said, and those who think in terms of partisan motives.

The President was asked whether his words could be taken as "an answer to the charge that a war cabinet is being created."

Yes, he replied, along with his

Spanish Government Reorganization Reported

LISBON, June 21.—(AP)—The Spanish government is being reorganized, it was reported here tonight, with the cabinet in session since early afternoon. A DNB, official German news agency, report said that Ramon Serrano Suner was taking over the foreign ministry portfolio held by Juan Beigbeder, who is to be shifted back to high commissioner of Morocco.

Smedley Butler Is Dead at 58 In Philadelphia

Famed Marine Official Had Picturesque Military Career.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(AP)—Major General Smedley D. Butler, 58, who retired from the United States Marine Corps after fighting halfway around the world and spent much of his later years urging that the nation keep its fighting men home, died this afternoon in Naval hospital.

"Old Gimlet Eye"—the name he got in the Mexican campaign because he learned so much of the enemy—succumbed at 4 o'clock to a gall bladder and liver ailment that had put him to bed a month ago.

Since he retired in 1931, with 30 years' service in the marines, Butler took to the lecture platform with the same sharp tongue that had often brought him into the public eye during his military and public service. He was the proponent of armed force only for home defense—he who had been a fighting man from the Orient to France.

He is one of the few men who twice were awarded the congressional medal of honor—in 1914 for heroism in Vera Cruz and a year later for storming—with 23 men—Fort Reviere in Haiti.

In 1918 he got the distinguished service medal for his work commanding the great American debarcation port at Brest, France. Three years later—when he was 40—he became a brigadier general, the youngest general officer in the corps.

In 1931 General Butler caused an international incident by referring to Premier Mussolini of Italy as a "hit-and-run driver."

GENERAL'S WIFE HAS KIN HERE.

Mrs. Butler is an aunt of Mrs. Harry M. Atkinson, daughter of the late Richard Peters, of Atlanta, and a cousin of Mrs. John F. MacDougal, Professor Ralph Peters Black, of Georgia Tech. Mrs. Jackson P. Dick and Wimberly Peters, all of Atlanta.

Nazi Spies in Mexico Contact Warships by Carrier Pigeon

Agent Is Not a German or Mexican and When Case Is Broken It Will Cause a Sensation, McGill Writes.

(This is the third of a series of articles by Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, on fifth column activities.)

By RALPH MCGILL.

MEXICO CITY, June 19.—(By Air Mail)—Some months ago there was a more or less obscure item in the newspapers of America. A well-known press association sent it out. It was a fact. Not rumor.

A carrier pigeon was found exhausted, buffeted by a storm. It had a band on its leg. And a number. Its owner was never identified. Nor its loft.

It now is known that during the period when the Germans were trying out the plan of having sea raiders, after fashion of the first World War, much of the information they received came from Mexico and from South American countries, notably Guatemala, and possibly Bolivia.

A ship may receive information from any source powerful enough to reach its receivers.

It may not send out any radio information because enemy ships can, by receiving the same signals, determine the position of the ship.

Consequently, and this sounds like the "Perils of Pauline," the German sea raiders notably the Graf Spee, received and sent information from Mexico and from at least two South American countries by carrier pigeon.

It must be recalled that while all this may appear fantastic it is fact. The modern preparation for world conquest by arms and "fifth column" propaganda, is more weird and theatrical than anything the movies have done. And still practical, and effective. The Graf Spee, scuttled by the Germans after a disastrous en-

Labor Revolts, Gives Estonia 'Red' Regime

New Government Set-Up Under Soviet Troops' Protection.

TALLINN, Estonia, June 21.—(UP)—A new revolutionary government was established in Estonia tonight, after armed Estonian workers seized the main government building and hoisted the red hammer and sickle flag under the protection of Russian troops.

The armed workers seized Tallinn castle, seat of the government, and hoisted the red flag over its 700-year-old tower.

There were clashes during the day, but it was understood that no one was injured.

The new revolutionary government announced tonight, following Russia's demand for a sympathetic government and the right to move troops not only through Estonia but through Latvia and Lithuania, is headed by Dr. Johannes Vares as premier.

(A new Latvian government headed by Professor August Kirchensteins as premier and foreign minister was set up in Riga Thursday night.)

Estonian workers aided by Russian soldiers disarmed Estonian police in the streets and then, racing through the avenues in commandeered trucks, occupied all police stations. The seizure of the government palace followed.

In addition to Dr. Vares, the new revolutionary cabinet of Estonia includes Franz Kraus as vice premier, Nikol Andreesen as foreign minister and seven other ministers. All of the new cabinet ministers are active socialists and mostly professional men. None had held government posts before.

Dr. Vares replaced Professor Juri Uluots as premier. Uluots became premier last October 12, about the time that Estonia signed a mutual assistance pact with Russia. Several days ago Russia demanded far broader military rights.

Prompt 'Yes' or 'No' Answer Demanded By Nazi Dictator

British Planes Battle and Anti-Aircraft Guns Roar as Waves of German Craft Soar Over Nation.

By the Associated Press.

Britain and Germany swapped aerial blows early today after midnight passed without any French action on Adolf Hitler's peace terms. Germany's armistice terms were accompanied by a demand for a prompt, unconditional yes or no.

Berlin experienced its second air raid alarm of the war and anti-aircraft guns around the German capital roared into action.

The Berlin alarm was in effect for 36 minutes and anti-aircraft guns around the capital fired at invading craft. No bomb explosions were heard in Berlin, however. Berlin's previous air raid alarm came during the Polish campaign.

In eastern England violent explosions were heard during attacks by waves of German planes in their third major night raids of the week. Vivid flashes accompanied the blasts.

Air-raid alarms wailed as spotlights picked up many German planes heading inland over the east and south coasts. Searchlights played across the skies picking out the raiders and anti-aircraft guns filled the skies with bursting shells.

Ear-Splitting Sound.
The bark of anti-aircraft guns, the clatter of machineguns and the challenging whine of British fighter planes made an ear-splitting overture to the sound of the raiding planes and the intermittent thud of the exploding bombs.

Air-raid alarms shrilled with the approach of the first attackers and the civilian population crouched in shelters while the battle raged on.

One salvo of high explosive bombs struck a lumber yard in an undisclosed eastern area, shattering windows in the immediate vicinity and shaking buildings as far as three miles away.

Reports from the attacked areas said that as soon as the ominous drone of the Nazi craft became audible their motors were drowned out by speedy British fighters darting into the skies to the attack.

While vanquished France awaited its government's decision, raiding planes bombed southwest France, including Marseilles and other points on the Riviera.

From the extent of the alarms in Britain, the latest German raids appeared to be greater than those of Tuesday and Wednesday nights, when at least 100 planes engaged in the attacks.

Great Britain Takes Over Bulk of French Navy Intact

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—Authoritative sources said tonight that this government had been advised that the "bulk" of the French fleet had been taken over intact by Great Britain.

Also, it was reported, a large number of French planes had been flown to England as well as north Africa to get them out of the hands of the German army.

The information received here was that one battleship, thought to be the Jean Bart, which was to have been commissioned by the French next month, was taken from a French navy yard and towed to an English port.

This capital also heard, without confirmation, that some French warcraft under construction—but not advanced enough to tow as in the case of the battleship—had been destroyed by the French before the advancing Germans took over yards at Brest and several other points.

Nazi Direction Features War, Lions Are Told

Tech Aeronautics Professor Says Base Organization Sustained Army.

Most remarkable feature of the war is the way Germany has kept her behind-the-lines organization intact, Professor Montgomery Knight, of the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, Georgia Tech, told members of the Lions Club at their luncheon meeting yesterday.

He said the fingerlike German salient poking through the Little Maginot line into France from the Belgian border would have been insane in the last war, but worked out well this time, due to the magnificent organization and tremendous concentration of men and materials at its base.

France fell, Knight said, because the entire German army was motivated. Ironically enough, the French taxicab army that stopped the German drive on Paris during the last war showed the Germans the way to victory this time, he stated.

"No corns or foot blisters for the Germans in this campaign," he remarked.

Nobody, he closed, knows much about defense against the multiple-headed German threat of "fifth columns," parachute troops, dive bombers, tank squadrons and infantry. But, he said, the fact remains that the United States must have more planes, trained pilots and enormous ground organizations, regardless of the war's outcome.

Three Counties Denied Added School Funds

Supreme Court Rules Against Chatham, Bibb, Richmond Claims.

Efforts of the Bibb, Chatham and Richmond county school systems to collect an additional $375,000 in state school funds for the current term were rebuffed yesterday by the Georgia supreme court when it ruled against these counties in cases wherein they sought to collect school funds on a child census basis instead of the teacher allotment basis imposed by the 1937 educational act.

The counties contended they were specifically exempted from the teacher allotment payment plan by a section of the 1937 act, and further argued that an amendment to this act, passed in 1939, did not remove this exception.

The supreme court held the 1939 amendment did remove the exception, and placed these counties in the same category as the other 156 in the matter of receiving funds.

In 1938, before the amendment was enacted, the high court ruled favorably for these counties and they were paid additional money for the school term of 1937-38.

The supreme court's ruling affirmed a decision of Judge A. L. (Jack) Etheridge of the Fulton superior court, who heard the case several months ago. Later, Judge A. L. Franklin, of Augusta, ruled on a similar case.

General J. T. Thompson, Inventor of Gun, Dies

GREAT NECK, N. Y., June 21.—(AP)—General John T. Thompson, U. S. A., retired, inventor of the Thompson submachinegun and in charge of design and manufacture of all small arms and cartridges for the government during the World War, died at his home today after an illness of three days. He was 80.

A native of Newport, Ky., he was graduated from the United States military academy in 1882. In 1919 he was awarded the distinguished service medal "for exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous service as chief of the small arms division of the office of chief of ordnance."

Frank Roberts Finishes Basic Flight Training
Frank A. Roberts, son of Mrs. John H. Roberts, of 126 Oakland street, in Decatur, has completed basic flight training at the United States air school at Randolph Field, Texas, it was learned here yesterday. He is a graduate of Decatur Boys' High School and was a prominent student at North Georgia College.

Lightning Kills Seven Under Tree in Storm

Florida Watermelon Pickers Fled Thunder-shower Near Ocala.

OCALA, Fla., June 21.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed by lightning nine miles north of here during a thunderstorm late today. Deputy Sheriff A. L. Connell said the victims were gathering watermelons on a farm and sought shelter under a tree when the thundershower came up. A bolt of lightning struck the tree, killing some instantly and fatally injuring the others.

The dead were identified by Connell as Jody Wynn, farm foreman, and six Negro field hands, Lee Barton and his wife, Virginia; Asa Lee Washington, Ella Sams, Lucinda Major and Mary J. Washington.

Miller Back On Pay Roll, Salary Raised

Road Board Head To Draw $600 Under Rivers' Order.

W. L. Miller, chairman of the State Highway Board, went back on the state pay roll yesterday by order of Governor Rivers, who increased his salary from $450 to $600 per month.

The ousted chairman had not been paid since he was restored to office April 20 by a decision of the state supreme court. He will receive two months' back salary.

Miller declared he had not asked for reinstatement of his salary at $600 per month. Governor Rivers slashed the chairman's pay from $600 to $450 in April of last year.

The Governor said he was acting upon the recommendation of Board Members Herman Watson and Lawson L. Patten. His order also restored the salary of Mrs. W. D. Murray, Miller's secretary. Miller received the Governor's official order, but upon learning of the chief executive's move he issued the following statement:

"If the Governor has reinstated my salary at the amount fixed by the Highway Board upon organization in 1937, he did it on his own accord, as I have not requested it of anyone. The salary as fixed by the board in 1937 was less than the average amount drawn by chairman of the State Highway Board of Georgia for the past 10 years, but was entirely satisfactory."

175 New Units Proposed for Capitol Homes

Further Property Purchase Planned for Near Future.

Announcement of a proposed addition of approximately 175 dwelling units to State Capitol homes was made last night by James H. Thayer, executive director of the Atlanta Housing Authority.

Negotiations for purchase of property in the proposed extension will be begun as soon as possible, he said at a meeting of the Grant Park Civic Association at Jerome Jones school.

In the six projects included in the present housing program, facilities for 3,532 families will be provided. More than 2,000 substandard houses have been demolished from the city, and the new projects are being erected. Apartments will be rented only to families of low income, whose net income does not exceed five times the rent paid.

Suspect Is Held in Cobb In Bank Holdup Probe

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., June 21.—A man listed as Wilson Adcock, about 25, was held in the Cobb county jail tonight for investigation in connection with the recent robbery of the S. Lemon Bank in Acworth, Deputy Emmett Marler said.

Adcock, held "on suspicion," was arrested this afternoon in the Hickory Flat community of Cherokee county by Sheriff Lee Spears and his brother, Deputy Roscoe Spears, of Cherokee.

Acworth bank attaches will come to Marietta tomorrow to view the suspect.

Lewis' Aide Quits Over Third Term Opposition

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP) Eli Oliver announced his resignation as executive vice president of labor's Nonpartisan League today, on the ground that he was unable to carry out the policies of John L. Lewis in the CIO leader's opposition to a third term for President Roosevelt. Lewis is chairman of the league.

W. B. Lamb Sentenced To Serve Year and Day

MACON, Ga., June 21.—(AP)—Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver today sentenced W. B. Lamb, former employee of the University of Georgia board of regents, to serve a year and a day on charges he obtained money from contractors to "rush" building projects pending in Washington.

ENGLISH CHILDREN REACH U. S.—These British children, part of a group of 100, were among the 768 passengers on the liner Britannic which reached New York yesterday. The Britannic also brought 400 refugees from central Europe. Many more British children are expected to be sent to the United States.

Group in House Hears Plan for Child Refugees

Briton Discusses Setting Up Colonies in Bermuda and U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP) Declaring that England is "desperately anxious" to send its children away at once from the impending battle of the British Isles, Roland Robinson, member of parliament, discussed informally with the House Foreign Affairs Committee today plans for establishing them in the United States and Bermuda.

Robinson later disclosed to reporters what he described as "a thought rather than a concluded plan" for using children's summer camps in this country for colonies of youth, from 5 to 16 years.

He also said consideration was being given to sending 30,000 to 50,000 children from the Isles to the British colony of Bermuda, not far from the American coast.

Both plans, Robinson said, would require American co-operation, since food and other supplies would be needed for any colonization in Bermuda.

He added that the Bermuda plan probably should be carried out first because immigration quota restrictions in this country would permit admission of only 6,500 children a month.

The Englishman, a youngish Conservative representing Blackpool in the house of commons, said there were "millions" of children who should be removed from what he predicted would be a fight "to the last street in the last town, to the last man and woman."

Personnel Survey Completed by City

Classification of the city's 3,100 employees was completed last night by the City Personnel Board in preparation for its submission to city council at a special meeting next week.

Under present plans, the list of classifications will be submitted to council at this special session and then at the July 1 regular meeting of the council the list will be resubmitted with the salary schedule for each of the classifications.

The work of classifying the jobs has been going on for several weeks. Officials in charge reported little protest over the classifications.

Judges Gardner, Cobb Honored at Barbecue

ALBANY, Ga., June 21.—(AP) Judge B. C. Gardner, of the Georgia court of appeals, and Judge Howell Cobb, of the Albany judicial circuit, were honor guests at a barbecue given by the Albany Bar Association Thursday night at the American Legion club house.

Sam S. Bennett, president of the local bar association, spoke on the spirit of co-operation which now prevails among members of the bar throughout the circuit. He lauded both of the honor guests, as did Judge A. L. Miller, of Edison, and A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge.

About 75 guests attended the "cue and meet."

TVA Tax Replacements Are Sanctioned in House

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP) The Tennessee Valley Authority received congressional sanction today to make contributions to states and counties to replace taxes formerly paid by public utilities.

The house endorsed the Norris-Sparkman bill by a 205-to-178 vote despite the insistence of Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the house military affairs committee, that the beneficiaries of TVA electric rates should make up tax losses "and get a taste of what government operation in competition with private enterprise means."

Homer F. Bell Dies in Smyrna Of Gun Wound

Inquest Held in Death of Former School Superintendent.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. SMYRNA, Ga., June 21.—Homer F. Bell, superintendent of the Smyrna schools until he resigned six months ago, was found dead at the rear steps of his home here late today. Police said he died of a bullet wound. His gun was found near him.

Coroner John R. Williams said a jury tonight declared the death accidental.

He resigned at the midst of last school term after serving as superintendent six years.

Mr. Bell came here from Wadley seven years ago. He also had held school posts in Gray, Monticello and Milner during 15 years of teaching. He was an honor graduate of both Rinehart College and Locust Grove Institute.

Well known in boys' work, Masonic work and other community activities, Mr. Bell also was prominently identified in educational circles. He had served as an officer of the Cobb County Teachers' Association and of the Cobb county athletic council. He was a past master of Neils Masonic Lodge No. 323 and a past master of the Cobb County Masonic Convention.

In a political announcement February 1, he announced his platform as an independent candidate for the office of county school superintendent, opposing incumbent F. T. Willis in the November general election.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Misses Mary Vaughn and Rosalyn Bell, all of Smyrna.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete tonight.

Pipe Firm Denied Right To Condemn

The Georgia supreme court decided unanimously yesterday that an act of the 1937 legislature did not confer upon the Southeastern Pipe Line Company the power to condemn private property for rights of way.

Reversing former Superior Court Judge B. C. Gardner, of the Albany circuit, the high court said the title of the "eminent domain" act provided for such condemnation to be authorized by the body of the bill did not follow through and establish the authorization.

Judge Gardner denied appeals for interlocutory injunctions against the pipe line company sought by Decatur county landowners, Ruth V. Bolts and Evelyn, Alton and Vesta Harrell.

The company has projected construction of a gasoline pipe line from Port St. Joe, Fla., through Georgia to the Tennessee line near Chattanooga.

Move To Ban Rough-Ginned Cotton Is Begun

Industrial Group Plans Educational Drive, Cites Financial Losses.

An educational program will be launched in Georgia to eliminate rough-ginned cotton, representatives of the cotton industry decided at a meeting here yesterday. Members of the special committee in charge of the program pointed out that farmers of the state lose approximately $500,000 annually because of this type of cotton.

Among those invited to the meeting were W. H. Lovett, of Dublin, president of the Georgia Ginners' Association; R. C. Neely, of Waynesboro, of the National Cotton Council; D. W. Brooks, of Atlanta, general manager, Cotton Producers' Association; Robert Stiles, of Cartersville, president of United Georgia Farmers; T. E. Fletcher, of Cordele, of the Georgia Warehouse Association; B. J. Kane, of Atlanta, Cotton Manufacturers' Association; E. C. Westbrook, of Athens; J. M. Glier, Jr., of Atlanta, cotton merchants and brokers, and Stiles Martin, of the State Department of Agriculture.

Senate Votes Restriction On Arms Transfers

Proposal Provides Only 'Surplus' Materials May Be Sent to Allies.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP) The senate approved tonight a proposal to restrict the transfer of army and navy equipment to other countries.

The proposal, inserted without dissent in many ways to expedite naval shipbuilding, would require that the chief of naval operations or the army chief of staff must certify that any equipment released is "surplus" and is not needed for the defense of the United States.

Sponsored by Chairman Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, of the senate naval committee, the amendment grew out of congressional criticism of the navy's release of 23 "mosquito boats" for sale to the Allies.

Under the amendment, the army and navy would have to supply congressional military and naval committees with copies of all contracts, orders or agreements for the disposal of military equipment.

After approving the restriction on disposal of military material, the senate approved a bill to give the army and navy broad powers to speed up the construction of airplanes and warships by negotiating contracts without competitive bidding and to permit the navy to work civilian employees for a 48-hour week with overtime pay.

J. R. Rossignol Loses Appeal In Fraud Case

U. S. Court Denies Plea of Man Sentenced to Four Years.

J. R. Rossignol's appeal from a four-year sentence imposed by United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood for violation of mail fraud statutes in connection with stock sales has been denied by United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit.

United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp, who went to New Orleans to fight the appeal several weeks ago, was notified of the court's decision yesterday.

Rossignol's business partner, A. J. Crocy, who was found guilty on the same charges, withdrew his petition for an appeal and entered the federal penitentiary last March 26 to begin his two-and-a-half-year term. The men were partners in an Atlanta brokerage firm.

Group To Discuss Food Stamp Plan

Wholesale food dealers in Atlanta and Fulton county have been invited by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation to attend a meeting at the Chamber assembly room at 7:30 o'clock Monday night for discussion of the food stamp plan which is soon to be inaugurated in Fulton county.

E. S. Papp, president of the Chamber, said his organization had conducted an investigation in several other cities where the stamp plan is in effect and the purpose of the meeting will be to explain to the wholesalers their part in the setup.

Nye Demands F. D. R. Resign To 'Save U. S.'

Isolationist Senator Urges Senate Group To Call Woodring.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP) A demand that President Roosevelt resign lest his foreign policies bring "disaster" upon the country was made in the senate today by Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, while at Hyde Park the chief executive accused his critics of partisanship.

Nye, an advocate of aloofness from European affairs, also urged that Harry Woodring, resigned secretary of war, be called before the senate military committee for questioning. He said he would be "very much surprised" if the committee did not learn that Woodring had been asked to transfer "national defense secret number 1"—a bomber sight—to the Allies, and that he had been ousted because he refused.

This brought from Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, the reply that Major General Henry H. Arnold had assured him that "at no time or under any conditions has any consideration been given to revelation of any secret bomb sight."

Colonel Frank Knox, new secretary of the navy, asserted at Chicago that the country was in danger "because we are inadequately prepared" and that his only aim was to help "get ready for any emergency" in a wholly nonpolitical way.

The senate military committee will hold a hearing on Secretary of War Stimson's nomination in a few days, with Stimson as a witness, while the naval committee will start considering Knox's nomination tomorrow.

Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, served notice that he would introduce a resolution calling on President Roosevelt to make public Woodring's letter of resignation—a letter which the White House has called "too personal" to publish. Clark said he believed Woodring had been "sacrificed" because he opposed weakening U. S. defenses by turning arms over to the Allies.

Pepper Urges Lending British Part of Navy

'Hitler Ought To Be Drawn and Quartered,' Says Senator.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, suggested in the senate today that "part of our navy" be turned over to Great Britain, to be manned by British seamen and used to "crush Hitler."

"Hitler ought to be drawn and quartered and his blood spilled over the nations he has trampled down," he shouted, as he attacked the "champions of appeasement," the senators, Holt, Democrat, West Virginia, replied that danger to the United States came not from "isolationists," but from "interventionists who want to tear Hitler apart and scatter his blood in every stream."

"I'm not quite that bloodthirsty or hysterical yet," he added. "I don't want to see that happen to anyone as much as I despise them."

Other developments included an announcement that the Naval Academy at Annapolis was sending its course study, as it did during the World War, to provide additional officers for the navy. The class of 1941 will be graduated February 7, 1941, four months ahead of schedule.

The navy disclosed that a $60,000,000 aircraft carrier, displacing 25,000 tons and capable of carrying 100 planes, would be built at the Norfolk (Va.) navy yard.

A senate-house conference committee struck from the $1,000,000,000 defense tax bill senate amendments which would have levied increases in "excess profits" taxes and provided a schedule of high taxes to become effective with a declaration of war.

Preparedness, Peace Talked By Republicans

Platform Writers Considering Stand on Aid to Allies.

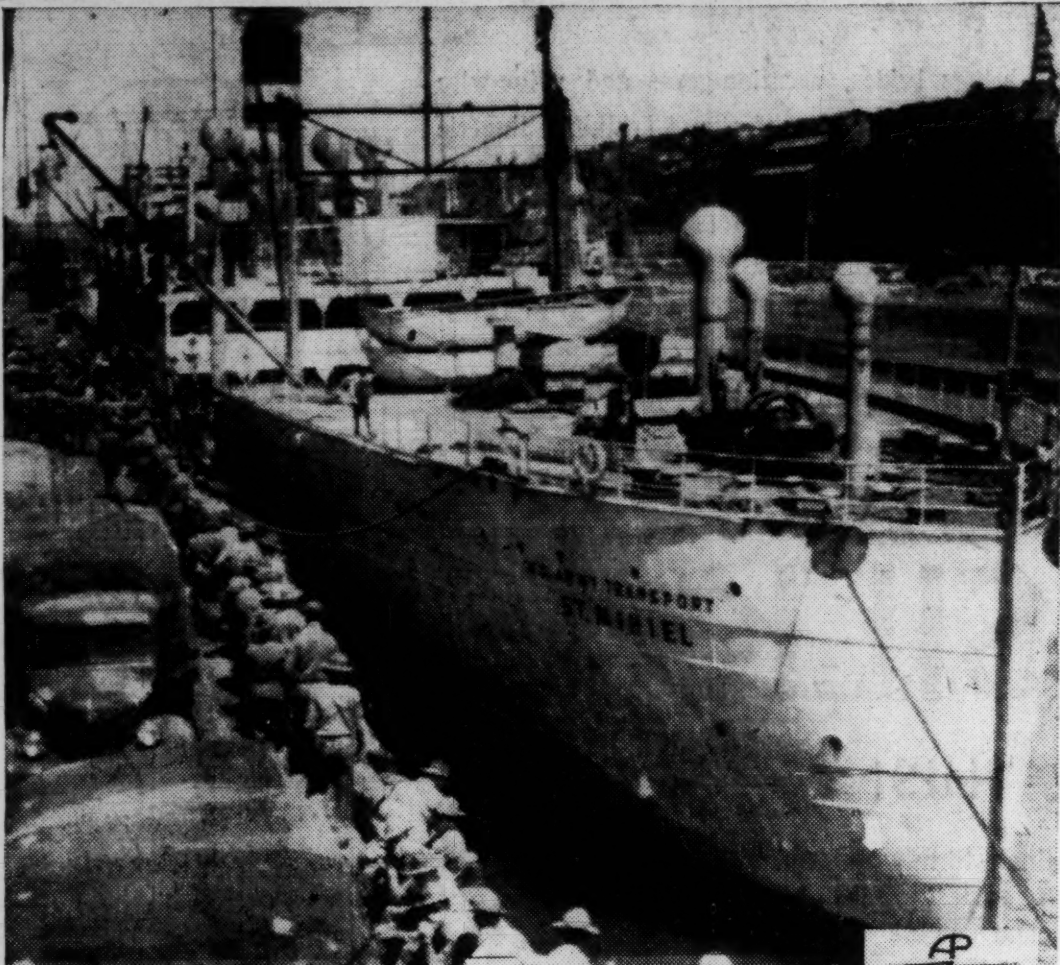

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(AP) The slogan "peace and preparedness" dominated Republican platform writers today, with a controversy obviously arising as to how far the party declaration should go in indorsing material assistance to the Allies.

Meanwhile, it was learned that some party leaders were urging that the convention adopt two platforms, one brief, concise and pointed, and the other elaborating at some length on the points made in the shorter document.

After closing the convention door on 74-year-old Joseph W. (Tieless Joe) Tolbert and his pro-Taft 10-man delegation from South Carolina, the committee completed the hearing of all delegate seating disputes by throwing out a contest from Alaska.

Wagner To Head Draft Of Democratic Platform

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, announced today that Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, will head the resolutions committee which will draft the party's 1940 platform at the Chicago convention.

ALASKA BOUND—The transport St. Mihiel will sail from Seattle today with 700 U. S. troops for the far north, where the army will protect the nation's vital new air bases. Loading of the transport with supplies, ammunition and guns was started yesterday. Part of the force to be stationed in Alaska is shown aboard the vessel.

French Weigh Hitler Terms For Armistice

terms, calling for a flat "yes" or "no" answer.

That the French end all resistance, give "all guarantees necessary" for continuance of Germany's war on Great Britain, accept preconditions "of a new peace whose essential contents will be reparation of the wrong done the German Reich by force."

Hitler withheld disclosure of his detailed demands pending final action one way or the other by the French.

Following the initial ceremony, Hitler himself returned to his western front headquarters. During his brief, 10-minute meeting with the French, the Fuehrer in his greatest moment of triumph occupied the same seat in the ancient railway car occupied 22 years ago by Marshal Foch when the French were doing the dictating. Hitler ordered the car itself taken to Berlin.

Accompanying the broad outline of the German demands, set forth in a preamble given the French delegates, was a declaration that Germany had no intention of casting "aspersions against an enemy so brave."

Italy, meanwhile, held in abeyance her settlement with France pending completion of the German-French negotiations.

On the war front, the Italian air force continued its offensive against British and French bases in the Mediterranean.

Fighting Slows Down. Despite official declarations of continued French resistance on the continent, it was believed in Bordeaux that the fighting had slowed down during the armistice negotiations.

The most active fighting was reported near the Swiss frontier, where the French armies of the Alps and the Juras drove back the Germans who had forced the polls into their mountain defenses.

Great Britain, pressing plans to fight off invasion, yesterday sent her air raiders in "successful attacks" against German gun positions toward British shores from Calais, 22 miles across the English channel.

In Alexandria, French official sources expressed surprise that the French Mediterranean battle fleet here and the middle-east armies in Syria would continue to fight beside the British regardless of France's acceptance or rejection of German peace terms.

Berlin to Get Rail Car. Hitler has ordered taken to Berlin the long-enslaved railway car where Germany signed the armistice in sorrow in 1918 and offered one in victory yesterday.

Along with the historic car, Hitler will take away the memorial tablet that marked the spot, and the monument the French set up with the graven legend:

"Here, on November 11, 1918, was frustrated the criminal arrogance of the German imperial Reich, defeated by the free people of France, which sought to enslave the world."

Hitler personally decreed that the monument to Marshal Foch is to be preserved undamaged, unmoved.

The old railway car was pulled from the special building in which the French had kept it proudly all these years to the precise spot where it stood on that morning of German defeat a generation ago.

Text of Preamble. Here is what the preamble said: "By the order of the Fuehrer and supreme commander-in-chief I have the following communication to make:

"In reliance on assurances given to the German Reich by the American President Wilson and confirmed by the Allied powers, German armed forces laid down their arms in November, 1918.

"Therewith was ended a war which the German people and its government had not wanted and in which the enemy, despite tremendous superiority, did not successfully in any way conquer the German army, navy or German air force.

However, at the moment of the arrival of the German armistice commission, violation of the solemnly-given promise began. On November 11, 1918, in this car then began the time of suffering of the German people.

"What dishonor and humiliation, what human and material suffering could be caused by its outbreak here. Broken promises and perjury conspired against a people which after more than four years of heroic resistance had only one weakness—belief in the promises of democratic statesmen."

"On September 3, 1939—25 years after the outbreak of the World War—England and France again declared war on Germany without any basis.

"Now the decision by arms has been reached. France has been conquered. The French government has requested the Reich's government to make known to them the German conditions for an armistice.

"In the historic Compiegne forest designated for the reception of these conditions, this is done in order once and for all to wipe out by this act of redeeming justice the memory which for France was no glorious page in its history, but which the German nation has always felt was the deepest humiliation of all times.

"After heroic resistance, France has been defeated and broken down in a sequence of bloody battles.

"Germany therefore does not intend to give to the armistice conditions or armistice negotiations characteristics of aspersions against an enemy so brave."

"The purpose of the German demands are:

- "1. To prevent a resumption of the fight.
- "2. To offer to Germany all guarantees necessary for continuance of the war against Great Britain, which Britain forces upon Germany."
- "3. To create preconditions for formation of a new peace whose essential contents will be reparation of the wrong done to the German Reich by force."

Industrialists Given Advice On Defense Aid

Shurling Says Inquiries Should Be Sent to Field Offices.

Industrialists interested in participating in the planned national defense program should communicate with various field procurement offices rather than local federal agencies, Francis F. Shurling, state director of the Office of Government Reports, announced yesterday.

Shurling said his office had received many inquiries from over the state as to "proper" authorities to be addressed.

If a firm wishes to have its name placed on the mailing list to receive proposals for purchases made locally by the Navy Department, a request should be filed with the supply office, Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., director said.

Other procurement offices Georgia businessmen may be interested in, according to Shurling, are: Quartermaster Corps, 1306 Twenty-two Marietta building, Atlanta; Ordnance Department, Comer building, Birmingham; Air Corps, Major E. D. Perrin, Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md.; Corps of Engineers, Wilson building, Mobile, Ala.; signal corps, First avenue, 58th street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Chemical Warfare Service, Room 404, 45 Broadway, New York city.

If executives are in doubt or wish further information Shurling's office in the Candler building will furnish additional data.

Americas Trade Plan Defended By Roosevelt

statement of last night that the selection of Knox and Stimson reflected "the overwhelming sentiment of the nation for national solidarity in a time of world crisis and in behalf of national defense—and nothing else."

Details of the economic program, now being submitted to the governments of the other American nations for approval, may not be announced until a Pan-American conference is held, the President said, possibly in Havana within the next few weeks.

But the chief executive described a mechanism that might operate something like this:

Each of the countries concerned would put up capital. One corporation might be formed to handle all commodities. Or several corporations might be established to handle single commodities—such as beef, wheat, corn, cotton and coffee.

The products would be sold from the pool to buyers outside the western hemisphere.

Centralized Agency. Thus, should Germany try her barter methods in the Americas, she would have to deal with one centralized agency instead of innumerable agencies, and she would be unable to take advantage of price competition.

In effect, the plan might turn out to be a vast international system of subsidized exports on a scale never before attempted.

The President said about $2,000,000 in commodities would be involved, and, from Commerce Secretary Hopkins, who sat beside him at the press conference, he received word that the total was divided almost equally between products of the United States and those of other countries.

No mention was made of Canada. But in his formal statement of the President said a program of co-operative economic action was being undertaken by the American republics—"and possibly by other countries"—in response to new, and it was hoped, temporary, international developments.

This program, he said, was not intended to replace the reciprocal trade agreements plan which the administration still believed the best basis for attaining "mutually beneficial economic relations among nations."

The press conference was held shortly after Mr. Roosevelt arrived here to spend the weekend at his country estate. Unless unforeseen events alter his plans, he expects to remain at Hyde Park until Sunday.

Bridge Bombings Feared in N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Two hundred patrolmen and detectives were placed on guard over the Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges over the East river tonight as a result of two anonymous telephone warnings that the structures were to be bombed.

The guard was ordered after a man, characterized by police as "very serious and very intelligent," called Brooklyn headquarters to say: "I know that bombs are going to be placed . . . on the bridges tonight."

FSC Buys Pork Products For Relief Distribution

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation announced today an additional purchase of 18,290,140 pounds of pork products and 162 carloads of American cheese for relief distribution under the Agriculture Department's surplus disposal program.

Purchase of pork products since last December now total about 190,000,000 pounds. Included today were 5,552,500 pounds of smoked pork, 11,852,640 pounds of yard and 885,000 pounds of salt pork.

House Passes Bill Expanding Ft. McPherson

$1,300,000 Authorized for Depot; Savannah Project Included.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, June 21.—The house late today passed a bill authorizing an expenditure of $1,300,000 for the development of Fort McPherson, near Atlanta, as a major army supply depot in the Fourth Corps Area.

At the same time the bill carries an authorization for government acquisition of 525,000 acres of land in the Georgia coastal region near Savannah for development of a huge army antiaircraft training center and proving ground.

Both projects were brought forward by War Department recommendations in connection with the elaborate national defense plans now being rushed through congress.

"Passage Assured." Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, who several months ago launched a movement for having the army establish a supply depot at Fort McPherson, said tonight that final passage by the senate is assured in due course. Funds for the expenditures authorized in the bill will be available out of the large sum of a thousand additional appropriations already voted by the house and senate, he added, making it unnecessary for further legislation before actual work on the development begins.

Ramspeck said the $1,300,000 authorized for the Fort McPherson depot will be used in erecting permanent buildings and barracks to store army supplies and equipment for the Fourth Corps Area, as well as housing additional personnel to be assigned to the depot under the program. Upwards of a thousand additional officers and men will be involved in the new detail, it was estimated.

Hub for Seven States. "Establishment of the supply and storage depot at Fort McPherson," Ramspeck said, "will accentuate the importance of Atlanta as headquarters for the Fourth Corps Area, which embraces some seven states in the southeast."

"It will also give added emphasis to the importance of Atlanta as a trading and merchandising center in the southeast," he declared, pointing out that the huge purchases of the army in connection with the depot will naturally have an influence in this direction.

Supplies and equipment to be stored at the Fort McPherson depot will be distributed to all military posts in the Fourth Corps Area.

Still another provision in the bill passed by the house today authorized additional construction at Fort Benning, Ga., to the extent of $1,320,000, to meet expanded needs of the army infantry school there.

The cost of the antiaircraft training center and proving ground near Savannah has not definitely been computed yet by War Department officials, but estimates put the ultimate expenditure as high as $50,000,000. It promises to be the largest project of its kind yet undertaken in the United States. An initial fund of $3,000,000 has been requested by the department for preliminary work on the project, acquisition of the acreage and the drawing up of plans.

Rumania's Lot Cast by Carol With Germany

Totalitarian Nazi-Fascist State Expected To Be Established.

By The Associated Press. BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 21.—King Carol cast his lot swiftly and squarely with Germany tonight.

He began formation of a new totalitarian party on the Nazi pattern, and it was reliably reported, that he intended to turn his country into a state of the Nazi-Fascist type.

Tomorrow night he will make the first political broadcast of his life to tell his people about his new "party of the nation."

The Nazi iron guard will play a big part in the new set-up. The strong peasant party, too, will be in it.

The iron guard organization long was banned and a vigorous attempt was made to wipe it out, but recently, "penitent" members have been pardoned and their country into a state of the Nazi-Fascist type.

He pointed out that Hungary and Rumania, also looking toward good terms with Germany, have voiced claims for boundary revision.

The King's decision followed several audiences in the past 24 hours with the German minister. Anti-Semitism, an iron guard trait, is expected to receive official sanction.

"Those officials responsible for killing iron guardists in recent years" will be punished, an announcement said.

Now, it is reported reliably, all industries, trades and professions will be nationalized by decree.

This will facilitate the German plan to harness Rumania's resources for its own economic gain.

1,000 Americans Wait Permits To Leave France

MADRID, June 21.—(AP)—United States embassy sources disclosed tonight that 1,000 or more Americans are waiting at the French frontier for permission to cross into Spain.

Loew's Offers Movie Attack On Nazi Rule

Other Theaters Are Presenting Films in Lighter Vein.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor. "The Mortal Storm," in which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer slaps out poignantly at the Nazi rule which rapidly is taking more and more foreign markets from their films, is a most welcome addition to the ranks of the all-too-few motion pictures which use the screen as a medium of thought expression.

With James Stewart and Margaret Sullivan in the roles of individuals rolled under, but not crushed, by the machine-like domination of one mind, "The Mortal Storm" opened a week's run at Loew's yesterday.

Other offerings for the week were in a lighter, frivolous vein. Edward G. Robinson returns to crime-comedy in "Brother Orchid" at the Fox, a film in which he has another wisecracking role equalling those in "A Slight Case of Murder" and "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." We found "The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady" a most amusing mystery-comedy at the Rialto and "Two Girls on Broadway" at the Rhodes presents Lana Turner and Joan Blondell in dances, songs and love-making along the Great White Way.

The Paramount held over "My Favorite Wife." The Roxy continues "Virginia City" and today is the last day for "Enemy Agent" at the Capitol.

"THE MORTAL STORM" IS POWERFUL FILM

"The Mortal Storm," at Loew's is one of the most powerful and complete picture histories yet screened about the rise of Hitler and the changes in the manner of living, thought and culture of Germany since 1933.

This film catches the enthusiasm of the German youth, who forgot trainings of the university and threw away individuality in a mad rush to follow the leadership and will of one man—the savior of Germany to them—Adolf Hitler.

But, "The Mortal Storm" is more specifically concerned with the happenings as they concerned the intellectual minority, those who refused to surrender freedom of thought, even for the Fatherland.

This is done through the means of a family—that of a non-Aryan father (Frank Morgan)—and the boys in love with his daughter (Margaret Sullivan). Political disagreements split friendships, find brothers attacking sister and sister's friends. The father is sent to a concentration camp because his scientific research does not agree with political doctrines. A romance between Robert Young and Miss Sullivan is broken when she sees cruelties of the new order.

Romance centers around Stewart and Miss Sullivan, who hold to their belief in freedom of thought. They seek to escape into Austria, but she is killed on the order of her former fiancé—as the border is reached.

The film is filled with anti-Nazi propaganda, but so what. Also in the cast are Irene Rich, as the girl's mother, and Maria Ouspenskaya as Stewart's mother.

"BROTHER ORCHID" IS LIGHT, FUNNY

Jenkins, the story works in its moments of religious reverence when the gang boss actually is converted to the peaceful life of these flower-growing monks.

Throughout the film, Robinson seeks class. In Europe he is fleeced by the society he thought had "it." Back home, Humphrey Bogart has kicked him out as gang boss and Ralph Bellamy has muscled in on his girl. Surviving the gang bullets, he is taken in by the monks, nursed to health and put to tending flowers—when he joins up, liking the place as a hideout. But the place gets him, and, dressed in the robes of the order, he goes to town and wipes out the rackets in a grand free-for-all when the bosses start demanding "protection money" from the monastery.

RIALTO'S MYSTERY IS ENTERTAINING

"The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady" is as entertaining a mystery as has played an Atlanta screen recently. Warren William and Jean Muir are starred with Eric Blore furnishing the comedy.

There are no unnecessary trimmings in this Rialto theater offering. It just has the essentials of amusement—intrigue and laughs.

Quite by accident, the Lone Wolf, retired police baffle, gets mixed up in a diamond theft and a murder. Because of his past record, the police connect him with it, and are ready to dismiss the case. He escapes and through a series of manipulations—which the audience is given ample opportunity to follow as amateur detectives—he tricks the real murderer into a confession and saves the girl from a prison sentence.

Police Drag Lake For Potter's Body

Efforts to recover the body of Thomas C. Potter, 818 Ponce de Leon avenue, who was drowned Wednesday afternoon in Silver lake, continued unsuccessfully yesterday despite efforts by the DeKalb county police with grappling hooks.

Fulton Loses 663 Farms Since 1935

DeKalb County Also Has Decrease, Census Discloses.

During the past five years the number of farms in Fulton county dropped from 3,605 in 1935 to 2,942 in 1940—a net decrease of 663 farms, Byron A. Pinkston, supervisor of the Fifth Georgia Census District, reported yesterday.

DeKalb county showed a similar farm decrease, from 2,693 in 1935 to 1,875 in 1940, while Rockdale county had an increase of 17 from 793 to 810 in the five-year period.

Fulton county's official population—exclusive of the territory inside the city of Atlanta—is 119,025, but it is not known whether this represents an increase or a decrease, as no comparative 1930 figures are available.

Pinkston explained that population estimates for 10 years ago were computed on a different basis, extending over both Fulton and DeKalb counties.

However, eight towns lying in Fulton county showed population increases. East Point jumped from 9,512 to 12,369 for the biggest increase of these Fulton county towns.

Figures on the others follow: Fairburn, 1,372 to 1,497; Hapeville, 4,224 to 4,991; Alpharetta, 477 to 647; Roswell, 1,432 to 1,622; Union City, 776 to 885; College Park, 6,604 to 8,167; and Palmetto, 984 to 1,026.

DEKALB GAINS FALL SHORT OF HOPES.

Decaturites and DeKalb countians learned the news of their population gains under the 1940 census with mixed emotions yesterday. The increase was greater, many said, because the first half of the decade was not prosperous as the last five years.

Decatur's increase was 25 per cent over 1930.

City Manager A. F. Newman blamed the drop off in per cent of gain to smaller families, but stated that "despite this the figure seems rather impressive."

DeKalb county's population is 86,703 as compared to 70,278 in 1930. Commissioner Scott Candler said, "I thought we had more than that, possibly nearer 100,000 persons."

Sullivan Cites WGSP Record First 30 Days

State Patrol Radio Brings 'Impressive' Results, He Declares.

The first 30 days' operation of station WGSP, radio facility of the Georgia state patrol, brought impressive results, it was announced yesterday by Commissioner Lon E. Sullivan.

He announced the following accomplishments through the station's broadcast:

Recovery of 37 stolen automobiles, arrest of eight escaped convicts, apprehension of eight "wanted" criminals, capture of eight "wanted" drivers, arrest of eight hit-and-run drivers, arrest of five drunken drivers, discovery of two missing persons, apprehension of four hold-up men and swift response to 64 accident calls.

"The accomplishments were those of county officers in many cases," Major Sullivan pointed out. "It was the existence of the radio which made them possible."

He said sheriffs of Cobb, Clayton, Douglas and Coweta counties were among those who have installed equipment attuned to the station.

Colonel Warden Given New Post

Transfer of Colonel John A. Warden, Fourth Corps Area quartermaster officer, was announced yesterday by corps area headquarters.

A native of Texas, Colonel Warden has been stationed in Atlanta since January 4, 1938. He will be assigned to the New York general depot, port of embarkation, Brooklyn, as quartermaster supply officer, headquarters said.

Colonel James L. Frink, now on duty at the Philadelphia quartermaster depot, has been named to succeed Colonel Warden here. Headquarters also reported the transfer of Warrant Officer Evert S. Thomas from Atlanta to the Philippine department.

114 Are Seeking Tests For Admission to Bar

One hundred and fourteen persons have filed applications to stand the Georgia bar examination June 26, it was announced yesterday by the clerk of superior court. It is the largest number ever to seek to stand the examination at the same time.

D. C. Lauderdale Jr. and William Price Vaughn Jr. were admitted to the bar yesterday by Judge John D. Humphries and Judge A. L. Etheridge, respectively.

Chappell Is Indorsed By Americus Jaycees

The Americus (Ga.) Junior Chamber of Commerce has indorsed the candidacy of Allen Chappell for membership on Georgia's Public Service Commission. The organization adopted a resolution pointing out that "he is not only eager but is well able to serve the people whom he represents, as evidenced by his many achievements and services for this section of the state during the past eight years."

SUCCUMBS—General Smedley D. Butler, retired, of the Marine Corps, died yesterday in Philadelphia. (Story on Page 1.)

George, Russell Pledge Support To U.S. Defense

Senators Reply to Letter From Georgia State Employees.

Senator George and Senator Russell yesterday pledged their influence in mobilizing the nation's resources for national defense.

The two senators replied to a letter from seven state employees who urged that congress take immediate action in carrying out the national defense program.

In his reply, Senator George said: "France, after a courageous struggle, is out of the fighting. All possible aid will be given to England. In a world situation which is changing from hour to hour, I shall continue to do my best to provide for the mobilization of our man power and all our resources for the defense of our country."

Following is an excerpt from Senator Russell's letter: "I have read your letter with great interest, and am glad to have the benefit of your views on the subject of national defense. I agree with you that every resource of our nation should be devoted to the building up of our armed forces in order that we may be invulnerable to any danger. I am working hard on legislation toward that end, and intend to support to the limit all measures and means designed to drive any potential attacker from our shores."

State employees signing the letter to the senators and Congressmen Robert Ramspeck were Ben G. Moore, W. Jan Keller, Mrs. Rosie Gilmore, Martha Lewis, Mrs. Ferol T. Wilcox, N. J. Cowart and R. C. Moore.

High Court Denies Dental Unit's Plea

The state supreme court yesterday dismissed a petition in which the Fifth District Dental Society sought restoration of its charter which was revoked by the Georgia Dental Association.

The record showed that the charter was revoked by a resolution at a convention of the fifth district society, which charged the fifth district society with "failing to promote mutual fellowship and good feeling among its members."

The action was brought by Dr. C. C. Hore, chairman of the judicial committee of the fifth district society, and others against Dr. Carl L. Betts, of Floyd county, president of the Georgia association, and others. The supreme court upheld the Floyd county superior court in dismissing the suit.

Hotel Men Install Buesse President

D. O. Buesse, of Atlanta, was installed as president of the Atlanta Hotel Association yesterday, succeeding John Candler.

Mr. Buesse, who has been in the hotel business here for the past 15 years, came from Montezuma, Ga. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau.

The association adopted an extensive advertising campaign in which Atlanta will be advertised from Wisconsin, Michigan and upper New York state to Atlanta.

The next meeting of the association will be held at the Mayfair Club, July 11, with Jake Abel as host.

Adams Scouting Camp To Be Opened Sunday

Bert Adams Boy Scout camp, serving more than 3,500 scouts in the Atlanta area, will open its fourteenth season next Sunday.

Assistant Scout Executive Joe Ballenger will again serve as camp director, with J. M. Patterson as assistant camp director, in charge of program and activities.

Buddy Mills, a medical student at Emory, will be the resident officer in charge of health, under the direction of Dr. Glenville Giddings and a staff of seven visiting physicians.

Joel Hurt Park Opening Is Predicted for August

Opening of the Joel Hurt Memorial park to the public the latter part of August was predicted yesterday following a conference of I. Simons, general manager of parks, and William C. Pauley, landscape engineer.

Much of the landscaping and tree planting already is completed, and installation of a gigantic electric fountain is the major job yet remaining.

German Spies In Mexico City Use Pigeons

parachute troops. In the states many persons smiled, thinking he was after publicity.

He wasn't. He knew something. The maps showed seaports and showed passes and roads. From every airport and from every seaport there were mapped the easiest and most practical routes for "fanning-out" movements of the troops.

Certainly these were not expected to be used soon but they were ready.

That is important. We are an easy-going people and goodness knows we are anything but thorough. That is why the French and English were at such a disadvantage. There was an old saying in England that England always was prepared, when a new war began, to fight the old one. They were in swell shape to fight another Boer war in 1914. In 1940 they were in great shape to fight the war of 1914.

German Ambitions. We were in much the same shape. We don't know what thoroughness is. The Germans do. Also we do not have any ambitions to conquer and dominate the world. The Germans and their "Me, Too," friends, the Italians, do.

The Mexicans really had paid but little attention to the Germans. They knew Arthur Dietrich was busy. What surprised, and dismayed them, was to find out how busy. Today Mexico would give a lot to know how far the political organization has gone.

It had gone rather far in Holland, France and Belgium. No one seems to recall that big business, afraid of Russia, helped Hitler in Germany. The conservative were for Hitler. Later he let them to starve, actually and figuratively. He used them when they could be used. Mexico's administration is worried about its own conservatives.

This country has seen, and let alone, most every sort of "ism." Today even its labor leaders, almost all of whom, led by friendly to Russia Lombardo Toledano, were hostile to the United States, are friendly.

One of the greatest things about the Mexicans is that they have a sense of humor. There is a statue, along the Paseo de la Reforma, of an Indian with one hand shading his eyes, looking off into the distance. The Mexicans laugh and say, "He is looking for Cardenas, our president, who is so much away on a visit."

Laughing at Labor. So, the Mexicans are laughing at the labor leaders who, after years of being friendly to Russia and hating the "Colossus of the North," now are acting as if they were on a honeymoon with the great power. They still, while degrading Germany, think Russia and her aggressions are all right.

In fact, Mexico would have a very able Russian "fifth column" if there were money to be spent for it. There isn't. Germany was spending about $30,000 per month. Those are not exaggerated figures. One does not publish even a small daily newspaper and an expensive weekly magazine on nothing at all. And those merely were the obvious evidence of spending.

The fifth column of Germany has moved its chiefs to a neighboring country. There are at least 5,000 ardent Nazis in Mexico who still are carrying out orders. They are playing possum until the storm aroused by the discovery of the extent of their labors and the expelling of their chief, Dietrich, blows over.

The Russian "fifth column" is not to be feared at present; but if Russia ever gives orders, and supplies the realistic cash, at least two newspapers will go to work as well as a number of Mexicans.

The United States has secret agents in Mexico as have France, England and other powers.

The Germans are being watched. So, for a while, at least, they will be still. Meanwhile, wait for some surprising stories of what has been discovered. The story of the maps and the pigeons merely are hints.

(Another article by Mr. McGill appears tomorrow.)

Department Stores Show Sales Rise

Atlanta department store sales for the week ending last Saturday increased 9 per cent over the same week last year, but declined 9 per cent from the previous week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta reported yesterday.

Sales with Federal Reserve district sales for the same period were up 8 per cent over the corresponding week a year ago, and down 8 per cent from the preceding week.

For the four weeks ending the same date, Atlanta and district sales showed a 4 per cent advance the corresponding period of 1939.

Church Street Project Waits on Convict Labor

The long-postponed widening of Church street in Decatur by 10 feet will be started as soon as DeKalb county can release sufficient convict labor, it was said yesterday by City Manager A. F. Newman.

Originally scheduled to include the block between Trinity place and Sycamore street, the program will extend only to the property line of First Presbyterian church.

Episcopal Camp Opens; Young Atlantans Attend

The conference season of the Episcopal church being held near Hendersonville has opened with Mrs. Peyre Gaillard, of Atlanta, a member of the staff, and the following boys and girls from Atlanta as campers: Susan Parish Adams, Charlotte Baker, Don Brannen, Shirley Coppedge, Nancy Gaillard, Mary Alston Pringle and Julie Reeves.

Knox and Stimson

So, because they are willing to serve their country in its time of crisis, two good Americans are read out of the Republican party.

President Roosevelt, in naming Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War and Colonel Frank Knox as Secretary of Navy, undoubtedly acted in what he believed the best interests of this country. That the appointees are both Republicans undoubtedly influenced his choice, but not for political or party reasons. It was a splendid stroke to add two such prominent figures of the rival political party to his cabinet at this time, chiefly for the undoubted good effect the news will have in other parts of the world. It is an evidence of American unity and a token, to the Axis powers and the struggling democracies of Europe alike, that this country is truly united in its policies regarding the war and home defense.

That party politics entered into the President's choice of these two men is utterly improbable. The only political angle was injected by the Republicans, in their comment after the announcement.

If the nation as a whole believed for one moment the charge, made by some G. O. P. leaders, that President Roosevelt and the new members of his cabinet are "trying to lead this country into war," there would be such an outcry that all three would be forever discredited.

The truth is, however, there is only one man in the world who can bring war to this nation. His name is Adolf Hitler and, if war comes, it will come regardless of the desires for peace of every living American.

Republican critics of the Stimson and Knox appointments forget that the unity they typify, at the head of the government, is but a reflection of the unity all over the country on the two issues which are so important today they make all others seem inconsequential. Those issues are, first that America shall render every possible material aid, short of war, to Britain which, since the collapse of France, is holding the last European trench against the might of the totalitarian foes of freedom and moral decency. For that last trench, beyond the Atlantic, is part of the defense of America and, if it breaks, the next line will be the United States fleet and army. Secondly, that this country shall, as rapidly as possible, create a defensive navy and army and air force so strong that no power, or combination of powers, in the world can successfully attack these shores.

That is what the nation wants, practically unanimously. When the few remaining isolationists in congress raise their voices, they speak as obstructionists to a program which means the liberty and the life of America. When Republican politicians, blind to all save their own partisan ambitions, criticize the appointment of patriotic Americans to the cabinet on the sole ground they are Republicans, they betray this country to the world by smearing the evidence of unity which it is vitally important the world should clearly see.

This country is not being "led into war." If there is one thing on which the nation is determined, it is that American youth shall not be sent overseas to fight in European wars.

But ordinary commonsense, unbiased, knows the President's policy of aid to the Allies and United States rearmament is the only hope of safety for the future. There will be little sympathy, and much disgust, with the attempt of the G. O. P. to make political capital out of the dangerous situation in which this country now finds itself.

The Nazis are now dropping a concrete bomb. So far, though, one hears nothing of the American League of Nations special, a paper bag of water.

Intrepid fellows, those Nazi parachutists. Still, none yet has known the wrath of an English greens committee for not replacing a divot.

Taking down the road signs of England might stay the invader, but only for the nonce. Putting in a clover-leaf crossing here and there would confound him for days.

A quick count shows us with but one anti-aircraft gun of the latest design. As we have two coasts, we may need two.

Off to Ostend for a holiday, P. G. Wodehouse fetches up as a Nazi prisoner. Thus, in these uncertain times, one gets away from it all, and into something else.

Large checks, says a style-for-men note, are favored by our campus dressers. And should, of course, be gratefully acknowledged.

All Must Sacrifice

The people of the United States, with remarkable unanimity, have approved the national program for defense. So determined was public opinion that it literally forced congress, in an election year, to enact increases in tax rates. This nation, as a whole, is united as rarely before in its history. The people want to help Britain and France to crush Germany by sending overseas every possible item of war materials we have and can spare, or that our industrial establishments can produce. But there is an almost equal unanimity on the decision we must not send American troops abroad to fight.

Secondly, the nation is determined to quickly step out of the character of a non-military people and to create an armed defense strong enough to forever bar Europe's dictators from encroaching upon the soil of the western hemisphere.

And the people realize, with intelligent acceptance, that to do this will cost many billions of dollars that can, in the final analysis, come only out of their own pockets. This rearmament must be paid for through taxes and the people have said to congress, "Go ahead and levy the necessary taxes, we'll pay 'em."

Soon the new tax bills, heavier than ever before, will be calling for payment. Every individual American imbued with a spark of pride in his nation and touched with patriotism will pay his taxes without complaint, but with gratitude that he is able to contribute his share to the essential defense of the nation.

It is only proper that the tax base be widened, as well as the rate increased. The democratic way of paying for a national necessity is for every man and woman to pay his share, according to his ability.

The power-mad dictators of Europe have placed a burden upon all the world and, when the full story of the horror they have imposed upon nation after nation is fully known, the fact that America may pay her share in taxes, instead of in destruction and in death, will be subject for thanksgiving.

An eastern jury made up of women took only 14 minutes to set a defendant free. A culprit as handsome as that ought to be in pictures.

Georgia Chewing Gum?

Fearing possibility that, in this disturbed world, the day may come when they will be cut off from South American sources of chic, manufacturers of chewing gum are experimenting with Georgia sweet gum, as the basic ingredient for their low-cost American luxury.

That the chewing of gum is a luxury will scarcely provoke argument. For it is undeniable that the most addicted masticator of the indigestible palate teaser would get along just as well, in all essentials, without it. Yet it is an inexpensive luxury and one without which millions of American children, of all ages, would be inconsolable. So long as the nickel is a negotiable coin, there will be demand for chewing gum.

Years ago, before commercialization of this unedible chic, sweet gum provided an acceptable substitute for thousands of Georgia boys and girls. Sweet gum trees are found all over the state, though they are most flourishing in swampy regions. There is, in DeKalb county, a most beautiful vale between gentle hills still known as Sweet Gum Valley.

The use of sweet gum in the manufacture of commercial chewing gum is still in the experimental stage. But, to the layman, there seems no reason why it should not prove feasible. Once it does, Georgia may find herself in possession of a new and surprising industrial asset, chewing gum factories may spring up within the state, sweet gum trees may be cultivated as assiduously as pine and Georgia stenographers may be urged, in colorful advertisements, to exercise their jaws on gum "grown in Georgia, made in Georgia, to be chewed in Georgia."

Editorial of the Day

WAR REFUGEES AND THE U. S. IMMIGRATION LAW.

(From The Baltimore Sun.)

If the British refugee children come in as bona fide immigrants, they must come within the numerical restrictions set out in the law. The quota for Great Britain and Northern Ireland is 65,721. That quota becomes available anew for the fiscal year on July 1, 1940. But even then the whole quota cannot be filled at once; the law requires that no more than 10 per cent of the whole quota be exhausted in a single month, so that children could come, assuming the whole quota were to be allotted to them, at the rate only of something over 6,500 a month.

There are no quota restrictions on the admission of visitors, but visitors are limited to an initial stay of six months. The immigration commissioner of the port of their entry may extend that stay up to two years; further extensions, under present law, is impossible.

Finally, there is a condition of admission applying to both immigrants and visitors which might be very relevant in the case of refugees, children or adults. It is that which refused admission to applicants who cannot show positively that they will not become public charges upon the bounty of the United States or one of its subdivisions. Doubtless this requirement could be met by assurances from the British government should a child-refugee program be worked out. And doubtless there are thousands of Americans who would be willing to guarantee the support of some of these particularly appealing victims of foreign war and devastation.

There is, finally, one further dread possibility which must be recognized. If disease should become pandemic in the wake of the terrible dislocation of normal life in Europe, all immigrants from the stricken areas or those likely to be carriers of disease would, of course, be excluded by present law.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GOVERNMENT CAN ACT WASHINGTON, June 21.—At long last, it appears as though the processes of government are really being speeded. The national defense program is being expanded so rapidly that congressional leaders are having trouble keeping informed. Neither the President, nor congress, nor the military experts foresaw such a decisive German victory, and as a result this country's rearmament must temporarily be on a day-to-day emergency basis.

It took weeks of German victories before many officials realized the danger, but now the terrible shock of the French surrender and the Nazi demand for unconditional capitulation have belatedly set the stage for quick results. A recent incident will serve as a good illustration of the new trend.

PLEASANT STORY For two weeks William S. Knudsen, the government's new armament expert, has been negotiating with Henry Ford for the manufacture of airplane engines. An agreement was reached on Tuesday and Knudsen called in Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson to explain what he had done and to ask for some army orders to clinch the deal. While he heartily approved, Johnson explained that the War Department had only $39,000,000 for airplane engines and the money was already allotted to Knudsen and Johnson then and there decided to get more money.

The two men called the White House, getting immediate clearance. The White House communicated with the Budget Bureau and told Budget Director Harold Smith to give his okay. Then a telephone call was placed to Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, who is handling the supplemental national defense appropriations bill. Explaining that a subcommittee was finishing up its work on the bill, Byrnes readily agreed to hold it up and insert a new appropriation for $3,500,000. The bill in the short space of a few hours, the Ford Motor Company could be given a commitment to start production on 3,000 airplane engines.

OBVIOUS LESSON While the incident gives a pleasant picture of the speed of the national defense advisory committee and the congressional willingness to cooperate, its lesson is obvious—the dire necessity of adequate appropriations and authorizations to gear industrial plants to armament manufacture. As Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. recently put it, "We have to give them cash on the barrelhead." At the time of the French surrender it was reported here that the President was now prepared to ask for "practically unlimited authorizations." The prediction came true the following day when Admiral Harold R. Stark presented to congress a $4,000,000,000 naval expansion bill, or a 70 per cent increase in our sea strength.

An equally necessary and ambitious program has been prepared at the army. Authorizations totaling several billions of dollars are needed for tanks, tractors, ammunition and the like. For months the War Department has been clamoring for more money, and now the new national defense group is convinced that its case is a good one. Most military experts believe that it will take between a year and 15 months to get equipment and mechanization for an army of 1,000,000 men. But if large new commitments can be made now, they predict that within three months after this orientation period, supplies for an army of at least 2,000,000, or even 4,000,000, can be produced.

SIMPLE PREMISE The fact that cannot be blinked away, and it is based on the opinions of informed men, is that this country will have to spend at least an additional $12,000,000,000 in initial outlay before an adequate two-ocean navy and a mechanized army of sufficient size to protect the western hemisphere can be achieved. Speed is of the essence not only for our rearmament, but in order that the British can be given every aid. Recently there was a bit of excitement over the President's release of 20 torpedo boats to the British. The transaction was a simple one and fully in accord with the White House program of every aid to the Allies. It was recommended to the President by Secretary Morgenthau after he had cleared the transfer with Admiral Stark. The President and Morgenthau are working on a simple premise: The British must be encouraged in every way and they must be convinced that we will make available more and more supplies.

A Plea For A Finger.

For my own finger. The initial finger on the right hand. In fact, the initial fingers on both hands. You see it is this way. I am one of those typists known as the "two-finger" school. We never learned the artistic method of manipulating the keys. We struggled with oldstyle typewriters in oldstyle newspaper offices until, by sheer determination, we achieved a speed that laughed at the scorn and made many an expensively trained typist hang the head in shame.

I do not cling to old machines for reasons of sentiment. You will find no typewriter of 1870 vintage at my desk. But the one you would find, if you came in at the moment this is written, is old enough. Too old, in fact. It has been a faithful friend but affection has reached its limit and the sooner I am rid of it, with a newer and easier working successor in its place, the better pleased I'll be. Of course, I would never dare to write in this strain had not the efficient purchasing department already promised me a new one. I stand in such awe of Brother Findlay and his assistants of the business office that I'd never, for one moment, attempt to even hint how they should conduct their affairs. Not even on so personal a topic as "Me and My Typewriter."

However, they've promised a new one so perhaps they'll understand this column is neither hint nor complaint. Merely a bald statement of facts and conditions.

The Only Way. It is my argument that only the "two-finger" method is possible on this old machine. For it is so old and heavy no other fingers on the human hands, save, perhaps, the first two of each, could stand up under the strain. In fact, I doubt if the other fingers would have the power to depress the keys. And it does make the tip of those initial fingers tender and sore and calloused, pounding and pounding these stubborn keys, all day long, day after day.

Then, every week or two, one of the keys will come loose, and the repair man has to be hurried over to fix it. At the moment I know the "O" is near dissolution from its staff, or whatever you call it. I can tell by the impressions on the paper, as I write.

Why waste money on these frequent repairs? Come on with that brand-new, light to work, easy to touch and silent to operate machine, please.

I might even learn something about the touch system, with a new machine. Though I doubt that.

A Real Old-Timer. There are scores of stories that could be told about some of the real old-timers in this newspaper job, and the faithful old machines they stuck to year after year.

For instance, Ed Bruffey. Ed had just about reached the retirement age when I first came to The Constitution, nearly 30 years ago. He was one of the best and most popular newspapermen Atlanta ever knew, some 50 years ago.

Ed, for most of his career, wrote his stories with pencil. But, finally, he succumbed to the machine age and tried to operate a type-writer. He had one of those antique models which didn't permit the operator to feel the actual weighting of the stuff. You hit the keys and, if you'd hit 'em wrong, didn't discover the error until you lifted the carriage and took a peek, later on.

But Ed was scrupulous. He wasn't going to have typographical errors in his copy. So, he'd strike one letter with the forefinger of the right hand, then lift the carriage with the left hand and check on the correctness of the letter he had just struck. Lower the carriage, strike one more letter, lift and look. Lower, strike, lift and look. That was the routine, all ways.

Ed lived for quite a few years on a pension, after he was too old for regular work. He'd come to the office once or twice a week, however, wanting to write some story he'd picked up. And we always kept that old-fashioned, invisible writing typewriter for his use. No one else would touch it. But Ed would touch none other.

There Are Many Others. There are other newspaper and typewriter stories. Gordon Noel Hurtel, for instance, the only man I ever knew who actually stuttered on the typewriter.

Jim Homan, who would never write other than by pencil, and who turned out such reams of copy, every day, we would marvel at the physical endurance and the muscular strength of his writing arm.

And others. But space is filled for today. And the "O" is still on the typewriter.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Are We Living Right?

NEW YORK, June 21.—Glancing about for the causes of our confusion and lack of confidence at the moment, I wonder if there is any meaning in the fact that amusement is one of the greatest interests of Americans and the provision of amusement a major industry. I am tempted to say that we pay more attention to amusement than to work, but that is a tricky proposition, and I will just hedge. However, it is easy to say that we take more interest in entertainment than in religion or civic duties and make the point. We spend vastly more man-hours in the movies and at ball games than in church or in pious works, and millions know the pedigrees and divorce records of moving picture actors who don't know the names of their congressmen.

We make celebrities of actors and radio personalities, and for years we have been giving an enormous spread of space in print to sports and other kind of entertainment, including the night club shows. A separate and respectable style of school of journalism has come into being to deal with the small talk, including smelly witticisms and the romantic or sexual problems of a class of people who appear to exist entirely in drinking resorts, many of which are outposts, indeed citadels, of the criminal underworld.

Ghastly Sounds.

Music, too, or those ghastly sounds which we accept as music, is an important interest of ours, so big, measured by its revenues, that we have created a great musical trust. If it were good music, well played or sung, that interest would be a benefit, but it is mostly horrible and made worse by strident and cynical instrumental work and by singers who can't sing but moo and yowl.

Since the first World War the amusement trade as a whole has become a giant in size and influence, as though frivolity and drinking were sturdy essentials of American existence. Even in rural districts the juke, or dump, has become a numerous institution, the country equivalent of the night club, and the annual week-end away from it all—a custom unknown except to the executives of business and the rich 30 years ago—has become an exhausting spell of helling around by night in noisy joints which mar the sight and sound of the country, and the artificial ugliness which defiles the natural beauty of Saratoga and the surrounding country and of the Catskills has been duplicated in the lake and mountain areas almost everywhere—all in the name of amusement.

Some of our colleges actually conduct courses, usually for more or less professional numskull athletes of the varsity, by which meaty giants are prepared for no other task than to teach other people to play, as the old saying was, or occupation of itself requiring tutored skill. We have gone mad about individual athletes and sport events in which from eight to a dozen men performed and from 50,000 to 100,000 other Americans sat in bleachers to watch. That has become our concept of sport.

American Affliction.

To return for a moment to the subject of our music, it has been with very few exceptions an atrocious stew of nerve-racking noise all pretty much alike—which is to say harsh, loud and without grace at best. But more people than the broadcasters imagine leap to the dials to silence the box when these dreadful discords begin, and, although America has produced this affliction, I doubt that it expresses the American taste.

But there can be no doubt about the quantity of it or our preoccupation with amusement of many kinds. The movies represent an investment and turnover which are, in the cinema's own word, colossal, and we are so infatuated by the personalities of actresses, joke tellers and crooners that the mere trade of gossiping about them has raised several individuals in journalism and radio to lofty brackets in the income tax. Celebrity has been given to people merely for discussing celebrities.

Americans always have been hard drinkers, and we now out-drink all other peoples by a still greater margin in quantity and alcoholic power, and hangover remedies are in such demand that some brands can afford to advertise widely in print and by air.

And no people on earth ever possessed as many dress suits and dinner jackets per capita as the American of our time.

Maybe we ain't been living right.

Native Tribe Punished

Chief Timuni Mkiye of the Embo tribe in South Africa has been suspended from his chieftainship for three years and fined $100, or two months' hard labor in prison, as the result of his tribe's burning of 165 huts of the Toyane tribe under the leadership of Chief Roma Ogile. Fines were meted to many members of the Embo tribe, the total being more than $30,000, according to a Johannesburg report.

Shelly Play Please

Dramatic critics of Dublin, Eire, are praising Lady Longford's new play on Shelly and pronouncing it one of the most charming productions of the season. The author chose the last years of the poet's life, when with his cherished friends, he lived at Pisa, and from whence he set out to meet his fate by drowning. Shelly's literary group, including Byron, are depicted.

Rickshas Revived

Because of the increase in gasoline prices rickshas are in favor again in the Federated Malay States. Not long ago authorities in Singapore and other cities reduced the number of rickshas which could be operated. When fuel prices advanced motorists stored their cars and took to rickshas again. The authorities have just lifted all bans against the ancient vehicles.

ONE WORD MORE

By WILLARD COPE.

During the absence of Ralph McGill on vacation his column will be written, from time to time, by guest columnists. Willard Cope, reporter on the staff of The Constitution, acts in that role today.

TRYING TO GET OUT OF HAVING TO THINK Germany's

Italy's—war to avoid thinking seems unbelievable, inexplicable, and some how unreal to many people. They feel bewildered, like the gentleman in his cups who studied for a long time the enormous mounted fish above the bar and finally assured the bartender: "The bragging fellow who caught that fish is a liar." They are still sort of hoping that none of this is so, that it hasn't really happened at all.

The magnificently logical illogicality which caused it to happen needs to be discussed so that civilized people—hampered as they are in this case by a willingness to think—will realize that what they are witnessing is probably the last revolt of the human race against having to think.

Why Fascism appeals to the German and Italian masses is shown with unusual clarity in an article entitled, "The Religion of Little Men," written by Dana Doten, in the February issue of Esquire. His most striking thoughts are reproduced here with the sanction of Esquire's publishers:

"The machine had done two things to the little man. First, by concentrating wealth, by destroying the self-sufficiency as well as the personal integrity of the individual, and by vastly augmenting the clamor, the ugliness, and the nervous strain of living—all these pressures the machine increased the burden on the little man, whose historic role has never been either heroic or happy. Secondly, the amazing improvement of every type of communication brought to the little man for the first time a complete and staggering awareness of his own hopeless position, his own anonymous, futile, and colorless part in the great schemes of the world.

"The little man in post-war Europe has, therefore, found himself bereft of traditional consolation, surrounded by an increasingly hostile environment, and ever more keenly conscious of his plight.

THINKS FOR HIM "The little man needed a form of politics which would undertake to solve all his problems at once, for they had become too complicated for him to analyze, too diversified for him to deal with separately. Everything had conspired to squeeze from his existence the vital qualities of faith, security, color, adventure, and hope. His job was monotonous and precarious—it stirred in him only boredom and worry. His personal life was restricted, inhibited, and irritating. His recreation was unsatisfactory, expensive, and to a steadily increasing extent, vicarious. The little man might have little problems, little resentments, little dreams and ambitions. But they composed his entire experience, and they left him frustrated, dully envious, generally hostile to everything around him.

"The moment had been reached when the solution for the little man could no longer be cosmic, it must be cosmic. It could no longer be simply religious, like the Reformation, or simply political, like the French and American revolutions. It must be a cure-all, an answer to everything. . . .

"What, precisely, has Fascism said to the little men all over Europe? It has said this: You envy your neighbors—we shall humble them; you are lonely—we are a great brotherhood; you are confused and mentally adrift—we do your thinking; your life lacks color, adventure, excitement—we shall show you heroic hours, with flags and music and pageantry and the quick high thrill of living; you resent unfamiliar, foreign things—we hate them, and we shall destroy them; you have always felt inferior to the thinkers, the intellectuals, the artists, and the geniuses—we shall, together, wipe all these off the face of the earth, and shall create our own culture which shall be your own, the culture of all little men; you are prejudiced, shortsighted, afraid of criticism—these are our characteristics, too, and they are godlike virtues; you want to work, to be sure of employment—all Fascists work; you are apprehensive of the feminine movement, disturbed over the emancipated woman, nostalgic for the sanctified sadism of sex relationships in the old days—we shall bring back the old days, and reincarnate modern woman; above all, you yearn for a purpose in life, a sense of unity with a greater whole, a constant physical participation in greater things—Fascism gives you a ready-made faith, an airtight unity, a daily exercise in the exhibition of your identification with that faith, that unity. . . .

REMEDY BECOMING VISIBLE "The purpose of this analysis is not to suggest a solution, but simply to diagnose the disease of Fascism, simply to make clear that Fascism is a recognizable cancer on the modern world, rather than a mysterious affliction. At the same time, the diagnosis would be misleadingly hopeless if it didn't conclude by hinting at possible cures.

"Once the best resources of modern thought are trained directly on the problems of the little man, inspired by the gruesome realization that they must be so concentrated, to save society, an authentic antidote to Fascism can emerge. For the time being only the rough outline of such an antidote is visible. We do know, however, that it must be (1) international, (2) pragmatic, (3) unselfish, and (4) utterly contemporary."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

My advice about joining this particular band of reformers can be given in one word. Don't.

But I wouldn't have you get the idea that reformers are a bad lot, for they aren't. There are, in fact, two kinds of reformers, and they differ as much as a cheerful log fire and a sleet spitting wind in January.

The good ones have given us almost everything we have that is worthwhile. They have been pathfinders, builders and teachers all through the ages, as they are now.

They have the vision to see what our civilization might be; they have the sense of responsibility and duty that prompts correction of faults; they have the courage to be ahead of their times; they have the compassion and unselfishness that lead men to sacrifice themselves for others.

In short, they are the salt of the earth, and you can do your bit with them and hold your head high in the knowledge that you are making your life worthwhile.

But there are reformers of another kind who aren't reformers at all, except in name. Reforming means remaking, and they don't make anything, but only tear down.

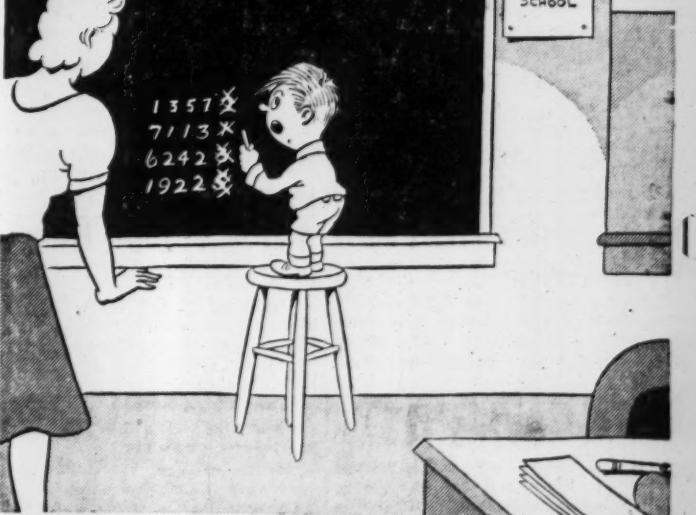

They are strange, holier-than-thou, uncharitable people who have dyspepsia, halitosis and the conviction that they alone are righteous. Anybody who doesn't agree with them is wicked, and they pursue him with a cold and heartless fury.

Being certain of their superior virtue, they think anything they do is right because they do it. They can break all the rules of fair play and ethics and even violate laws without feeling guilty, for they are convinced that any method necessary to achieve their purpose must be right.

They ruin the lives of innocent girls and the careers of blameless men. Within the memory of people now living they have attacked some of the highest and most honorable men in our government and driven them from office by campaigns of slander and vilification. You must be on your guard against these people, lest they persuade you to help persecute the innocent. They make such a show of righteousness, it may fool you; but you can always recognize them by the fact that they are trying to hurt somebody. Real reformers try to help—not to harm.

Love,
DAD.

Giants Kick Reds Into 3d Place, 4-3; Yankees Halt Tigers, 12-7

BY JACK TROY

Nothing New?

There may be nothing new under the sun, but there certainly was something different under the lights last night at Ponce de Leon park.

Fans saw a left-handed third baseman for the first time in the history of organized baseball here.

When Johnny Hill failed to arrive for the final game of the Memphis series, the Crackers were in a quandary.

Manager Paul Richards, suspended for 10 days, naturally was not available to catch. So that brought Deway Williams in from third to catch.

The only bona fide infielder left to play third was Petrino. So, on short notice, he took over the hot corner, with Les Burge going to first.

Once before, in the season of 1918, fans saw a left-handed shortstop for about a week. Sammy Mayer, who was good at most all positions, did a fine job of it.

It was in the war year when the season ended in July and the Crackers were short-handed.

It looked a bit odd with a right-handed glove-wearer on third, but Petrino filled the bill acceptably. And it made history at Ponce de Leon.

Undoubtedly it is the only park in organized baseball where, at one time or another, southpaws have played short and third where, at one period, a chubby pitcher named Bobby Durham, went behind the plate.

Earlier this year, the Crackers had the only catching triangle baseball has known, with Smith behind the plate, Richards on first and Williams on third.

Those Crackers are ready for any emergency. In fact, an unverified report last night had it that Earl Mann was seen warming up under the stands. He used to play for Oglethorpe.

Takes It Easy

Paul Richards, who caught the last 10 games despite a painful injury, took his suspension in good grace.

He worked out with the club until game time. Then he retired to the clubhouse and listened to part of the game by radio while dressing.

Later on he went in the stands and watched his charges baffle the Chickasaws.

He was greatly pleased by the spirit of certain Atlanta fans, led by Helen Douglas Mankin.

Mrs. Mankin showed up early at the park and immediately started taking up a collection to cover his $100 fine. The response was most generous.

A fine ladies' night crowd was privileged to see the Crackers turn in one of their finest games of the year. Luman Harris seemed to have more stuff than at any other time during the season and the club was hustling in inspired fashion.

The Cracker spirit is such that it will take more than a measly suspension to keep them out of the pennant race. And you may lay to that.

The way they were playing last night they could have had left-handers at every position and still given the Chicks a good shellacking.

Hail the Browns

There was much ado about nothing when the St. Louis Browns cut the Yankees down in a double-header recently.

I say that was nothing because the Browns went on from there to take four straight from the erstwhile league-leading Boston Red Sox. And they did nothing but take both ends of a twin bill Thursday from the squawking Yawkeymen to make it four in a row.

All this has been going on under the very noses of the baseball populace with hardly any attention being paid it.

That was because the Brooklyns and the Cardinals were tied up in a feud that had all the earmarks of the genuine.

The Cards and the Dodgers hogged the spot.

COWBOY IN TOWN

Here is rough-ridin' Cowboy Luttrell, who fights Jack Dempsey at the ball park Monday night, July 1. The big Texan arrived in Atlanta yesterday and will box Chief Chewacki in a public workout for newsreel cameramen this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Chief Chewacki, former fighter, knocked out Max Schmeling in England. The public is invited to today's workout. Afterwards, Luttrell will retire to the mountains to continue his training.

His Name Is Clarence

Luttrell Hits Town

By DEEZY SCOTT.

The mad mauler from the band lands of Texas arrived yesterday. He's only a sissy, really. His name is Clarence. It's his Achilles heel.

Clarence is pretty timid around girls and he said he sneaked into town. He didn't sneak. Clarence "Cowboy" Luttrell came breezing into Atlanta by automobile from Tampa looking for a parade.

Jack Dempsey will be paraded with the city fathers when he arrives a few days before the fight with Clarence July 1. And the shy violet from Texas wanted one, too. Maybe, if he beats Dempsey, he'll get one.

Clarence Luttrell blushed most all afternoon. He squirmed in his green business suit, green shirt and tie, and brown and white shoes. He looked uncomfortable, but when he changed to his high-heeled boots, beaded jacket and tie, seven-gallon hat, and buckskin britches, he looked more comfortable.

And although he says he can really twirl a rope, that sitting

Tickets for the Jack Dempsey-Cowboy Luttrell fight continue to meet with unprecedented demand, officials said yesterday. As was expected, the top-price seats are going first. Many of the reservations are coming from out of the state.

But even owned his jacket, and that even his gloves are expensive beaded ones, he walked without the faintest semblance of a swagger. I think the boys and girls, seven-gallon hat, and buckskin britches, he looked more comfortable.

Sharp Shootin'

GAILLARD'S PUTTER DESERTS HIM. CHATTANOOGA COUNTRY CLUB, CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 21. Their best ball for the first six holes was 20 against a par of 24, and they halved the par-3 seventh hole in sevens.

That was the way Gene Gaillard, of Atlanta, and Neil White, of Nashville, started out in their quarter-final match of the Southern Amateur golf tournament.

The start was a bit odd, and so was the rest of the match, which Gaillard, the last Atlanta in the championship running, lost, 2 and 1.

Gaillard was supposed to be hot with his putter. He missed a 3-footer on the 15th hole and a 5-footer on the 16th, which would have caught White.

White wasn't supposed to be able to putt a hook. Rated a grand golfer to the green, White was said to wear handkerchiefs when he stepped on the carpet.

White started by sinking a 30-foot putt for a birdie on the first hole. He rimmed the cup with a 75-footer—it was stepped off to keep the hole and get his par to go 2 up.

So you can see the match was not going according to Hoyle. After White's fine putts to go 2 up through the second hole, they halved the third in birdies, dropping 4-foot putts. Gaillard got down a 14-footer for a birdie on the 4th. He got his par at the short 5th to catch White.

White came back with a 25-foot birdie on the 6th, while Gaillard was beating the bushes and sending a ball out of bounds.

So they reached the 7th tee with five birdies between them. There, both the golfers' games suddenly went out the window.

White, who is extraordinarily long off the tee for such a small fellow, slammed a nice one down the middle. Gaillard's flat swing got down a 2-dip, was not timed exactly right and he sent a low ball into the left rough.

Gaillard played out into the fairway within firing distance of the green.

White proceeded to feed the catfish two balls—yes, they were out of bounds, near the hole. His fourth put was far short of the green.

Gaillard was two shots ahead of White then. To make it shorter, Gaillard hit the sand trap at the right of the green on his third shot. White was on in five.

Gaillard tried to clip the ball clean, instead of blasting. The ball stayed in the trap as Gene muffed it. His next shot, a blast, barely stayed on the edge of the green, almost going over. They got down in two putts to halve the hole.

That hole might have been the difference. I think it was, but Gene said after the match that it didn't bother him much.

Anyway, it kept Gene from catching White, and he never did catch him after that.

White won the eighth with an 8-foot par putt to go 2 up. He took the 12th to be 3 up with six to go.

Gaillard sank an 18-footer on the 13th for a deuce. That gave him new life.

And then he blew the 3-footer and the 5-footer, which easily

President Trammell Scott's decree prevented Manager Richards from appearing on the playing field.

Hudson Pitches One-Hit Contest

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—(P)—Sid Hudson, 24-year-old rookie, pitched the Washington Senators to a 1-6-0, 1-hit victory over St. Louis tonight, snapping the Browns' winning streak at six straight.

Rip Radcliff deprived the 6-foot-4-inch righthander of a possible no-hit game with a double in the ninth. Hudson had a record of 24 wins and four losses with Sanford, of the Florida State League, last year, but this season had been troubled with wildness and tonight's triumph was his fourth against nine defeats.

Radcliff reached third on a passed ball by Jake Early, but stayed there while George McQuinn struck out, Harland Clift fouled out and Walt Judnick fled out.

The Browns loaded the bases in the first inning—the only frame except for the ninth in which Hudson had any trouble whatever. NATS 1; BROWNS 0. NIGHT GAME. WASH. ab h r e i. St. Louis ab h r e i. Case, cf 4 1 3 0 0. Cullinane, rf 3 0 2 1. Lewis, lf 4 0 0 0 0. Radcliff, lf 4 1 4 0. ## Charley Glock And Williams Blast Homers

Anderson Has Two Triples; Atlanta Plays Barons Today.

By JACK TROY.

Once again the Crackers drove into second place as they captured the final game of the Memphis series, 6 to 2, last night.

With Manager Paul Richards suspended for 10 days and Johnny Hill failing to arrive to play third base, the Crackers presented a left-handed third baseman to the Atlanta public.

Pat Petrino played the full game at third and handled the only play coming his way perfectly. The Chicks tried bunting on him early in the game, but they were all handled by Luman Harris, who won his seventh game of the season.

In great form, Harris allowed the Chicks only six hits and one of their two runs was unearned. Harris, incidentally, has won six of his last seven starts and right now ranks as one of the best pitchers in the league.

GREET GADDEY. The Crackers greeted Sheriff John Gaddy like a long-lost cousin. Charley Glock and Dewey Williams hit home runs, Alf Anderson cracked two triples, Williams also hit one and Harris, himself, came through with a timely double, as also did Glock.

The play of the Crackers with a patched-up lineup on the field was very comforting to Manager Paul Richards, who watched the game from the grandstand.

The Chicks were in the game only briefly when they scored a run on errors and a wild pitch in the first. The Crackers tied it up in the third and in the fifth and sixth they scored pairs of runs. The final tally came in the eighth, following the Chicks' second run.

The Crackers got next to Gaddy for a total of 11 hits and seven of the 11 were for extra bases. The victory gave the Crackers the series, two games to one, and a full game grip on second place again.

Birmingham moves in today and Edile Leebbaum, seeking his seventh victory, will face the Barons. The game starts at 3:30.

HILL DUE TODAY. Johnny Hill is due to be at third today, but after the way things went last night it may not be a bad idea to leave a southpaw at the hot corner. It certainly put the shummy on the Chicks and sort of added insult to injury.

The Chicks might just as well have skipped the final game. It was apparent from the start that the Crackers were thoroughly aroused over the suspension of Richards. Acting Manager Emil Mailho and the rest of the nine were at a keen pitch.

Maybe Manager Richards' sus-

KIES SOLD. MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 21.—(P) Catcher Norman Kies, of the Chicks, obtained recently from Knoxville, has been sold to Meridian, of the Southeastern League, the Memphis front office announced tonight.

Runs batted in: Glock, Mailho, Williams, Anderson, Harris; two-base hits, Glock, Harris; three-base hits, Anderson; double play, Anderson to Glock to Burge; left on bases, Memphis 6, Atlanta 8; bases on balls, off Harris 4, off Gaddy 1; struck out, by Harris 4, by Gaddy 4; earned runs, off Gaddy 5, Harris 1; hit by pitcher, by Gaddy (Glock); wild pitch, Harris. Umpires, Welsh and Blackard. Time, 2:02.

ONLY ONE IN CAPTIVITY?—The big guy at the left is Truck Hannah, manager of the Memphis Chicks, observing a rare phenomenon in baseball—a left-handed third baseman. The little guy is Pat Petrino, Cracker first baseman, who was forced to play third last night when Johnny Hill failed to arrive.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(P)—Quiet buying continued in bonds today and many domestic corporations and U. S. governments reached new tops for the June recovery.

The imponderables in the war situation operated against extensive commitments for volume of $4,304,100, the highest value was the smallest since early in the month. Yesterday's transactions came to $4,797,900.

Aiding the market considerably, however, was the lightness of selling orders, a feature which led analysts to conclude the foundation had been strengthened as a result of the long period of war liquidation.

The most striking movement in the foreign sector was a 20-point drop to 50 in French government stamped 45 of '49 on the sale of a single bond. Treasury issues extended recent gains by 2-32ds to 24-32ds of a point.

Wheat pit was unusually quiet, with few traders restricted operations pending European developments which they hope may supply the cue for future market activity.

For minutes at a time not a hand was raised or a shout heard in the crowded pit. Prices advanced about 1-2 cent at 1-4 higher, but backed down frequently and closed unchanged at 1-4 higher, compared with yesterday.

Speculative enthusiasm was at a minimum because of the uncertainty. Some buying based on less favorable crop reports and a rise in price for flour demands appeared at times.

Barley advanced 1-2 cent, rye 1-8 to 3-8 higher than yesterday. Oats unchanged to 1-4 up, rye un-

Decrease Announced In Peach Shipments

MACON, Ga., June 21.—(AP)—Peach shipments from Georgia fell to 59 cars last night, according to the marketing news service. Car receipts and loadings in the field index totaled 93 cars.

Haulings were moderate. There was a slight wire inquiry; demand was light. Carloads half bushels. Early Rose, U. S. No. 1, wide range in quality. Mostly 80 cents. New York paid up to $1.25 for best half bushels. Early Rose, and mostly $2 and $2.25 for crates (sixes) of Early Rose, large.

STEEL SCRAP ADVANCES.
PITTSBURGH, June 21. (P)—Steel scrap advanced 50 cents a ton today after recent hesitancy as the industry tried to gauge effects of the French peace plea. Number 1 heavy melting was quoted at $20.50-$21 a ton.

Miss Louise Moore Weds Mr. Lawson

MACON, Ga., June 21.—Miss Louise Moore's marriage to Hugh Lawson, of Perry, was solemnized at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker Moore, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. Ellis Sammons, pastor of Vineville Baptist church, was assisted in performing the ceremony by the Rev. J. A. Ivey, pastor of the Perry Baptist church.

Miss Mary Colquitt and Charles Andrew, of Perry, rendered the musical program.

The bride was gown in traditional white satin with a long train built into the skirt, with sleeves full above the elbows and fitting in points over the wrists, the bodice made with sweetheart neckline in which hung a pearl and sapphire necklace that her father gave her mother on their wedding day. The tulle veil, made in two lengths, was attached to her hair with a cap of the tulle which had a pleated ruching behind a band of tiny orange blossoms and clusters of orange blossoms at each side. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Charles Reeves Moore and the bride's sisters, Mrs. Quillian Smith, of Atlanta; Mrs. Pace McCorkle, of Thomson; and Miss Patsy Moore, Rozar Moore, niece of the bride; Miss Margaret Powell, of Villa Rica, and Miss Geraldine Wheeler assisted at the reception.

The couple left for a trip to Virginia, and will reside in Perry. The bride wore for traveling a black sheer skirt buttoned on to a high-waisted white eyelet blouse over which was a tiny black bolero cuffed with white. Her large brimmed black felt hat, worn far back on her head, was banded with black and white polka-dotted ribbon. She wore black accessories.

Anna Nagel's Attractive Print Turban And Parasol Set Is New Fashion Note

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.—Hat news from the Universal studio... Anna Nagel recently put an attractive turban and parasol set, both in the same material—Indian print crepe. Rich shades of blue, green, beige and brown (with white outlines) make up the pattern of this colorful fabric. The turban is twisted into a high, off-the-face, draped front. The parasol, a new fashion note, is quite large, with handle in matching green shade of print.

Another hat owned by Anne is in white felt, styled on simple tailored lines, having a wide brim and shallow square crown, the latter bound with brown grosgrain ribbon, with short streamers at the back. Also on Miss Nagel's chapeau shelf is a headpiece with a navy faille crown with points of the peak turned down. The brim is of white starched lace. Navy faille binds the turned rim and finishes the back in a wide flat bow.

Hats belonging to Peggy Moran, leading lady of Universal's "I Can't Give You Anything but Love, Baby": A tiny, tip-tilted crown of black faille with pink roses posed at the back, and topping a snug-fitting hand-embroidered black veil bonnet... A spectator sports hat of white jersey, stitched with black. A green parrot perches at the front of the black grosgrain banding... Hop-sacking is popular for casual sports hat wear. Miss Moran has one in pastel pink... Of light blue felt, another hat owned by Peggy has a cluster of violets topping the crown, surrounded by misty blue veiling... And here's a Flemish poke hat of white toyo straw, with red and white polka-dot crepe forming the band, under facing, and bandeau which drapes to long streamers at the back.

Hats belonging to Constance Moore: A breton in jaunty lines of white toyo straw with shallow crown and saucer brim faced with navy and white polka-dot crepe. The same crepe forms a bandeau hat. A sunshade hat of light straw braid. In a cool tone of the tan, it has wide flaring brim and tiny crown draped with a band made from the same fabric as her dress... A hat of crisp starched white pique, trimmed with brown shadow veiling and pierced with a brown and white quill at the side... Severity of tailored line tempered with feminine brim of white starched lace styles her summer cartwheel hat. The tiny crown is of stitched navy faille, set off with flat bows at each side, from which extends a faille band to the edge of the brim. The brim edge is piped in the same faille... Another cartwheel is of white stitched fabric, with bound brim edging and novel detail on brown grosgrain banding, which loops over the crown from back, to finish with arrow at front. A large brown quill adds height.

Bette Davis went on her boat trip to Hawaii in an original Falkestein model of gray and blue plaid. To go with the suit was a contrasting blue blouse. Bette carried a shinning navy patent bag with calfskin handles, the top scalloped like a tulip's cup. Navy gloves were crushed short about her wrists and showed narrow patent stitching. Her shoes were navy toecup-ties with patent wedges. Her hat, a casual navy felt, sprouted a dark gray feather.

Milo Anderson, Warner designer, fashioned a smart street ensemble for Rosemary Lane to wear in "An Angel From Texas." The coat dress of beige gabardine fastened down the front and had a tailored, turned-down collar and self-covered buttons. Beige and brown twisted cord was used to edge the collar and front of the coat. Her pillbox hat of the same corded fabric.

Small gold balls and chains served as novel buttons on a white shantung suit worn by Ann Southern in "Brother Orchid."

Silver and white make a "heavenly" evening gown for Ellen Drew, Paramount star. It has yards of white cotton net in a voluminous skirt of many layers. The fitted bodice is silver lame with narrow shoulder straps and an extreme back décolletage. Lame edges the skirt and the giant white net handkerchief. Lana Turner, currently featured in M-G-M's "Two Girls on Broadway," looks very fetching in a full skirt of chiffon and a fitted bodice of sequins embroidered on chiffon.

Enter Room With Grace And Poise

By Ida Jean Kain

There is so much of the actress in every woman that most of us look upon the incidental fact that our parents were not Barrymores as the main reason we did not achieve brilliant careers in the theater.

But if the average women were to be suddenly thrust back of the footlights, she would quickly realize that it takes more than a pair of parents or a memory to make an actress, that every step, every move, as well as every word, must convey the impression of grace, and that she didn't know the first thing about sitting, standing and walking beautifully.

Thinking that you might pay more attention to rules along this line if they came from a dramatic coach, I paid my $5 and took a lesson in the fine points of poise as practiced by actresses.

First, pause at the door and pull yourself together. Then, keep in mind that all poise comes from the "stretch" in the section between ribs and hips. By stretching up with that portion of the body, you tend to correct the alignment of our figure. The ribs should be extended, shoulders down; the chest and head lifted. You should never look down—unless you are searching for a pin!

As you walk, let your arms swing only slightly, just enough to prevent the appearance of rigidity, and hold them slightly back at the sides. Do not come into a room with arms swinging, body swaying.

Your step should be: "Firm, glide; firm, glide." The foot should cling to the floor for an instant, giving a feeling of security, then the next step should be taken. To keep from swaying and to make for grace, the upper legs are always together. The knees are loose and the step should be taken in a straight line with toes pointing straight ahead. If you are inclined to "toe out," practice walking a chalkline with the toes turned in somewhat.

Our instructor says that the most awkward way to enter a room is to "come in like a hurricane had blown you in" and to go over to a chair, turn around, look at it, and then sit down. There is a better technique: You walk up to the chair—gracefully, of course—keeping the eyes level. As you reach the chair you turn around and before sitting down, feel the chair with the back of your leg.

When you sit, sit well back with the weight either on one foot or the other, and not equally distributed. Then when you get up, the weight is on the forward foot, releasing the back foot for the step, and there is no awkwardness. If you cross the knees, cross the knees—don't cross the legs higher up.

Send a stamped return envelope to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the leaflet, "Posture Makes the Figure."

Doctor Brady Lists Some Diseases Which Are Known as Germ Diseases

By Dr. William Brady.

Somebody wants to know what diseases of the human body are supposed to be known as germ diseases.

Dad bust it! I do wish you children would desist from baiting me that way. You know it rouses all my sarcasm when you pry me with the furtive mood. Let's be frank. Why make a secret of the identity or standing of the one who does the supposing? We're all out of grammar school now.

Every public library has or should have Rosenau's "Preventive Medicine and Hygiene" published by Appleton's. This authoritative work gives the best of our present knowledge of the cause and prevention of disease and I believe it omits no disease which physicians know or believe to be of germ or infectious character.

The more important diseases we know caused by specific germs are tetanus (lockjaw), typhoid (enteric) fever, tuberculosis, cholera, plague, diphtheria, anthrax (wool sorters' disease), glanders, gonorrhea, malaria, epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis (brain fever, spotted fever), syphilis, typhus, tularemia, childhood fever (puerperal septicemia), actinomycosis.

Diseases we believe to be due to germs or other organisms: Amebic dysentery, bacillary dysentery, paratyphoid, dengue, chickenpox, smallpox, epidemic (lethargic) encephalitis, measles, German measles, scarlet fever, influenza, undulant (Malta) fever, mumps, pneumonia (lung fever), poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis), Rocky mountain spotted fever, (tick fever), septic sore throat, acute infectious conjunctivitis (pink eye), trachoma (chronic red sore eyes), tularemia, whooping cough, yellow fever.

Diseases we know are caused by parasitic infestation: Trichinosis, hookworm anemia, favus and, of course, the common round worm, pinworm, tapeworm and ringworm infestations.

Ordinary septicemia (acute blood poisoning) is due to various germs, chiefly strains of streptococcus and staphylococcus, invading the tissues through some wound, scratch or other break of skin or mucous membrane, never to chemical poisoning by rust, verdigris, metal, dye or paint as popular notion goes.

Botulism (food poisoning) is caused by the toxin of clostridium botulinum, formerly called bacillus botulinus. This organism grows in foods, whether fresh or canned, which are carelessly handled, bruised and exposed in open market, both meats and vegetables, producing its deadly toxin or poison in the food before it is eaten. The germ itself is harmless; but its toxin is a frightful poison, attacking the vital nerve centers rather than the gastrointestinal system. Recent cooking is the best safeguard against this poisoning, food allowed to stand for many hours after such cooking may contain some of the poison, for ordinary cooking does not kill the spores of clostridium, and so they may go on growing in the food and producing their toxin.

Three-Way Design

By Barbara Bell.

With this one easy pattern you can sew for all sorts of wonderful times! Just look! You can make a play frock for active sports (panties included), of seersucker, denim, gingham or percale! Cut the frock in daytime-length and you have a pretty-as-a-picture fashion, for spectator sports and runabout, using the same sturdy cottons, or a combination of plain and striped linen. For a glamorous dance frock, choose taffeta, or gaudy, silk print or dotted Swiss, and cut your skirt to floor length.

The design (No. 1914-B) is so easy to work with, in all three personalities. Step-by-step sew chart included.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1914-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) in monotone requires for dance length, 57-8 yards of 39-inch material without nap; daytime skirt 31-2 yards; play skirt, 31-2 yards; 15-8 yards for blouse; 12-3 yards for panties.

THESE WOMEN! -- By d'Alessio

"I'll never marry a sailor—I couldn't sleep in one of those things!"

MY DAY: Guard Thoughtfully American Liberties

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Something curious is happening to us in this country and I think it is time we stopped and took stock of ourselves. Are we going to be swept away from our traditional attitude toward civil liberties by hysteria about "fifth columnists," or are we going to keep our heads and rid ourselves of "fifth columnists" through the use of properly constituted government officials?

If we violate the rights of innocent people or even of guilty people, we lose our long established liberties because of our desire to curtail the activities of those who are dangerous as groups or as individuals, by trying to curtail them in unconstitutional and ill-considered ways.

On page one of a newspaper this morning there appear three articles showing the heat and lack of consideration with which many people are acting. One heading reads: "Crowds Force Sect Members To March With Flag in Wyoming." The story tells how six people of a certain religious sect were dragged from their homes and forced to pledge allegiance to the flag.

In public places at this time we might exact this of all people, and the most dangerous fifth columnists would be the first to conform. Must we drag people out of their homes to force them to do something which is in opposition to their religion?

In another article it is reported that the attorney general has had to explain to congress that a bill approved by the house will, if it becomes a law, constitute a historic departure from an unbroken American practice and tradition for 150 years. This bill is perhaps the best example of abridging our liberties in order to protect ourselves from one individual who can easily be rendered harmless by far less dangerous methods.

The third article is one which states that a leader of great prominence in Catholic youth, Boy Scouts and Boys' Club of America is going to lead the fight on what he considers subversive elements in a youth-led organization. One of the first things he suggests is that he will demand that this organization advocate the suspension of civil liberties in this country as far as Communists are concerned. He is quoted as saying: "I don't think it is any time to pamper those who are bent on destroying our country. These birds (meaning the Communists) are saboteurs. I fought in one war and I will fight in another to defend my country, but I don't want to do it with a lot of saboteurs at my back."

The gentleman in question is 42 years old. The people in the youth-led organization are likely to be found in the front line of battle before he is even called. If they happen to feel that our constitution should be adhered to, unless it should be changed, they seem to be thinking along the same lines as the attorney general of the United States.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Jim: "If you don't let me play with the wagon all the time, I'll go home."

Mother: "Let him go, son. It is only fair for you to have your turn, too."

Son: "You can play with my wagon all the time if you won't go home."

Mother: "You're a sweet, unselfish boy, to be so nice to your little guest."

It is as necessary to teach some children to stand up for their own rights as it is to teach others to consider the rights of others.

Correct Speech Can Easily Be Acquired by Practice

How hurt a girl is when a friend seems ashamed to introduce her, turns aside with a hasty "Wait a minute" on meeting an acquaintance. To a girl whose English is crude such moments come often, for friends really aren't proud of her.

No matter how charming she may look, educated people wince when she makes such gross errors as "I could have WENT... Between you and I... I HAD ought to do that." Her speech would contribute to her charm if she said correctly: "I could have GONE... Between you and ME... I ought to do that."

Good English is no mystery. It can easily be acquired. With a list of common errors, right forms at hand, you note your mistakes and weed them out. Soon you speak delightfully.

You avoid superfluous words, such as "The dish fell off OF the table... Where is he AT?" The right forms are "The dish fell off the table... Where is he?"

You distinguish between words of similar meaning or spelling. Instead of "I was AGGRAVATED by the noise," you say correctly, "I was IRRITATED by the noise."

Make your speech a social asset. Our 40-page booklet, "Common Errors in English," helps you weed out mistakes, shows how to use words correctly, make your English acceptable wherever you go.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The Friend You Envy Has Her Troubles

By Caroline Chatfield.

"Never again will I envy anybody," she said. "I have a friend who has always seemed to ride on the crest of the wave. She's had everything heart could desire and tongue wish for. Apparently she's had her cares, no heartaches. Life seemed to have dropped all its sweets in her lap and she had only to pick them up and nibble. Yesterday, in a moment of weakness, she opened her heart to me and, to my amazement, I saw that she had the same sort of problems and mental agonies I have. She's been struggling to get on top of them just as I struggle. And the very things I have envied her are the causes of her problems."

"Every heart knoweth its own bitterness," wrote the Psalmist, which is an elegant way of saying every one of us has his problems and sorrows and we needn't be egotistical to the point that we think ours are bigger and bitterer than the other fellow's. But we do.

If our problems grow out of poverty, we look at the affluent and say: "They have nothing to worry about. If we were sitting pretty as they are, we'd never complain." No? Oh, yes, we would. Money greases the wheels of life and makes them purr as they turn but it takes the motive power of character to turn them. Money can't buy that. Some of the most wretched people in the world are rich as cream, and much of their wretchedness is a direct result of their riches.

"If we are alone in the world, harassed by a sense of loneliness and isolation and fear of a desolate old age, we look at our friends who are surrounded by families and we say: 'They have the best of life: love, companionship, fun, run at hand and the certainty that they will have a helping hand when they are old and infirm. No excuse for their crying.' Sometimes it happens that the loneliest people live under family roofs and sometimes it happens that hate instead of love, permeates the atmosphere of family life.

Every one of us has his problems, his sorrows, and we can get on top of them more easily by comparing our lots with those less fortunate, than by comparing with those who appear to have life, love and happiness by the tail. No matter how hard we look we can't find an adult whose experience isn't alternately with troubles and triumphs. "Every heart knoweth its own bitterness."

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Simple Shirring

By Lillian Mae.

A lulling approach to summer festivities—this new Lillian Mae frock! For Pattern 4484 is full of romantic, feminine appeal. Select a dainty, soft print or sheer for its fabric... and follow the Sewing Instructor's clear directions. Isn't the neckline delightfully shaped? Use ribbon bows, clips or simple shirring to gracefully hold it back at either side. Rows of shirring or darts at the sides of the front waistline are a new and arresting touch, concentrating fullness in the skirt directly below. The gathers of the short sleeves are held in for smooth fit. Lace edging about the neck and sleeves gives a final, becoming note to this afternoon style.

Pattern 4484 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 31-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Cut a smart figure in the summer fashion picture. Make your new wardrobe from the original designs in the Lillian Mae Pattern Book. A colorful forecast of summer, 1940, it includes styles for country and city dweller, "pocket-edition" youngster and "40-plus" matron.

Noland-Aldridge Wedding Is Announced for July 13

... OF EXCEPTIONAL INTEREST are the wedding plans of Mary Ann Noland and Robert Preston Aldridge, of Jacksonville, which are revealed today for the first time. The engagement of this popular couple was announced several weeks ago.

July 13 is the date selected by the young couple, the rites to be performed at St. Luke's Episcopal church, with the rector, Rev. John Moore Walker, officiating at 5:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. A musical program will be presented on the organ by Mrs. Charles Chalmers, while a violin solo will be given by Robert Harrison.

S. C. Noland will give his daughter in marriage, and the pretty bride-elect has chosen her sisters, Jane and Patricia, as her attendants. The former will be maid of honor and the latter will be flower girl. The groom-to-be has selected J. L. Chivington as best man, and the ushers will be James O'Callahan, John L. Blick Jr. and Jack Pierce.

After the ceremony the couple will be honored at a reception to be given by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Noland, who will entertain at their home on Linwood avenue, and will have as their guests a limited number of friends.

In addition to the Atlanta guests who will attend the wedding will be a number of out-of-town guests, including Robert G. Aldridge, of Tallahassee, father of Bob; Mrs. M. A. Lawrence and Mrs. Pearce Noland, of Tampa, grandmothers of the bride-elect, and her aunts, Mrs. Frank Strauss and Mrs. Henry Harvey, of Tampa.

A round of social affairs will honor the young couple. This evening Mrs. M. E. Waggoner gives a steak supper in their honor. A tea has been planned for Mary Ann on July 3 by Mrs. Paul Nichols, and among others planning to entertain are Mrs. P. H. Crawford, Mrs. W. J. O'Callahan, Mrs. Walton Ford and Betty Hatcher. Mrs. W. T. Morris entertained Mary Ann at a shower recently.

Peachtree Hills Club Meets.

Peachtree Hills Woman's Club met recently with Mrs. George Kasper on Edison avenue.

Special feature of the program was the recognition of Mrs. W. L. Bryan as author of a slogan in a recent contest of clubs that won $25 for the club. "Better Understanding of International Relations Among Women" was the subject of the contest. Mrs. A. H. Strickland and Mrs. George Appley received honorable mention.

The birthday anniversary party will be held at the home of Mrs. C. J. Stegall, 74 Peachtree Hills avenue.

For Miss Brown.

Miss Jo Helen Brown, whose marriage to Robert Harold Parker will be an event of August, is being feted at a round of parties. The Bachelor Stragglers' Club entertained at a dinner party recently in honor of the bride-elect.

Miss Lillian Hathaway gave a luncheon. Invited were Misses Velma Harris, Jane Franklin, Ann Morre, Elizabeth Denson, Virginia Harrington and Evelyn Williams.

Parties Are Given For Miss Hopper

Miss Phoebe Jane Hopper, whose marriage to Homer Henley McCoy, will be a brilliant event taking place this afternoon at the Morningside Presbyterian church, was honored yesterday at a series of interesting parties.

The first of these affairs was the luncheon and stationery shower at which Mrs. Howard Loveless Jr. was hostess at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. E. McCann, on Fairview road.

The luncheon table was centered with a silver bowl filled with a graceful arrangement of pastel colored summer flowers. Invited were a group of friends of the hostess and honor guest.

Mrs. Loveless was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. McCann, and her grandmother, Mrs. Lena M. McCann.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McCoy entertained at an alfresco party complimenting the bride-elect following their wedding rehearsal.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. R. C. McCoy Jr. and Mrs. N. C. Cox, and guests included 45 friends of the hosts and honor guests.

Auxiliary Holds June Meeting.

The June meeting of Lee-Roosevelt Auxiliary No. 13 of United Spanish War Veterans, featured a flag day program, presented by the chairman, Mrs. Daisy Irwin, and included the following program: "Our United States Flag," Mrs. Annie Snell; paper, "I Am Your Flag," Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin; "What the Flag Stands For," Mrs. Pansy Jarrard; "Our National Banner," Mrs. Ida B. Greer; Mrs. Fannie Mae Rebb presided at the piano.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Fred Brady, who was presented as department assistant conductor, having been elected to this office at the recent state convention, held in Fitzgerald. The interesting reports were made by the chairman of child welfare, Americanization, convention delegate, Mrs. Fannie Mae Rebb, and the chairman of the national convention are: Mrs. Ida B. Greer and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin, alternate, which will be held in August in Detroit, Mich.

A committee will go to Hospital No. 48 this month to make bandages. Luncheon was served by the committee, Mesdames Alice Chosewood, Fannie Mae Rebb and Kate Lewis. Mrs. I. Thomas and Mrs. Lucile Irvine, president of the V. F. W. Auxiliary, were guests.

The club visited Flowerland in place of the June meeting.

Mrs. Tebo Presents Records to Chapter.

The General John Floyd Chapter of the United States Daughters of 1812 met recently at Rhodes Memorial hall with Mrs. Herman J. Gaertner presiding.

Lieutenant Colonel P. S. Woodward, director of Vocational Education of the Atlanta Opportunity School, spoke on "Preparedness and National Defense." Mrs. Owen McConnell, chapter chairman of national defense, spoke on the doctrinal origin of each phrase of "The American Creed."

Mrs. Clarence D. Tebo presented to the society a handsomely bound volume of chapter records in memory of her parents, Senator LeRoy Fillmore Patterson and Isabelle Teel Gremmer Patterson, whose mothers were real daughters of 1812.

The chapter presented to Miss Louella Higgins, of Washington Seminary, and Miss Katherine Hall, of North Avenue Presbyterian School, medals for the best essays written on "The Embargo Act Under Jefferson." Honorable mention and a certificate in history went to Miss Cato Welch, of Washington Seminary.

Donations of books for the Merchant Marine library were requested.

Mrs. McArthur Wins Sweepstakes Prize.

The Whiteford Garden Club held its annual spring flower show recently with Mrs. H. J. McArthur winning sweepstakes for receiving most points. Mrs. Hugh Chandler was awarded the silver trophy for best horticulture exhibit.

Others winning blue ribbons were Mesdames N. A. New, J. F. Carmichael, H. J. Bolton, J. M. Taylor, J. D. Robinson, A. W. Patton, H. R. Strickland, Homer Carter.

The club visited Flowerland in place of the June meeting.

Luncheon Given For Mrs. Rice.

Mrs. Byron Kistner was hostess recently to the junior group of the Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., in honor of the regent, Mrs. Frederick C. Rice, at her home on Pinetree drive.

Luncheon was served buffet style. Mrs. Paul Solomon gave a reading, "The Gypsy Flower Girl." Miss Jeanne Martin, of New York, was a visitor, and Mrs. S. J. Bame was welcomed as a new member.

Mr. and Mrs. Worley Thaxton Springfield, of Sulligent, Ala., whose marriage was solemnized Tuesday evening, are pictured leaving the Peachtree Road Methodist church. Mrs. Springfield is the former Miss Molly Ray Respass, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Respass.

Miss Willis Weds Edwin Thompson

The marriage of Miss Helen Elizabeth Willis, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Willis, and Edwin Lothrop Thompson, son of Mrs. A. L. Thompson, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at a quiet ceremony taking place at the Peachtree Christian church. Rev. Robert W. Burns performed the ceremony in the presence of members of the families.

The altar of the church was banked with palms and white gladioli, and lilies completed the decorations.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a Eizenberg model of hyacinth blue tulle and lace. She wore a matching French flower hat and navy blue accessories. A shoulder bouquet of purple orchids completed her ensemble.

Mr. Thompson and his bride left for a wedding trip to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and upon their return they will reside at 1090 Berkshire road and become popular additions to the young married contingent.

Miss Hawkins Weds Mr. Reese.

The marriage of Miss Sheppie Hawkins, formerly of Canton, Ga., daughter of Mrs. T. F. Hawkins, and the late Dr. Hawkins, and Joseph Kenneth Reese, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reese, of Sumter, S. C., was quietly solemnized at noon yesterday at Druid Hills Baptist church. Dr. Louie D. Newton, the pastor, performed the impressive ceremony in the presence of immediate families of the couple.

The lovely bride was attractively gowned in a navy mesh dress, featuring a bolero jacket with fagoted white pique lapels and cuffs. Her accessories were white and she wore an off-the-face stitched fabric hat with navy ribbon trim and a short face veil. Completing the costume was a shoulder bouquet of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

After the ceremony the couple left for a trip to the mountains of North Carolina. After July 5 they will reside in Sumter, where the groom is connected with the Post Office Department of the United States government.

Miss Chaffee and Mr. Crim Wed at Sacred Heart Church

The marriage of Miss Marie Chaffee and Joseph Malcolm Crim took place at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at Sacred Heart church. This date also marked the 30th wedding anniversary of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wesley Chaffee.

Rev. Father John Emmert performed the impressive ceremony and Vincent Hurley rendered the musical program. Stately palms, white flowers and candles beautified the altar, and the pews were decorated with white tulle. Lee Elkin was best man for Mr. Crim and Robert L. Tomlinson and Steve Carroll were ushers. Mrs. William Ellis Jr., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore blue marquisette, the ruffled bodice featuring a Peter Pan collar, and the flared skirt was full and graceful. Her poke bonnet was made of blue marquisette, and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father, Fred Wesley Chaffee, with whom she entered the church. She wore a gown of blue pink marquisette, the fitted bodice having a high neckline and trimmed with blue pink marquisette buttons. Lace insertion trimmed the long sleeves and the skirt. Her hat was made of blue pink maline in an off-the-face model, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and valley lilies. She wore an heirloom pin belonging to her great-aunt, the late Mrs. Susie Dailey Howard, of Jackson, Miss. Mrs. F. W. Chaffee, mother of the bride, wore black and white printed chiffon redingote with white accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee, parents of the bride, entertained at a small reception at their home on Fifth street for relatives and intimate friends. Mrs. Walter A. Peacock and Miss Katherine Redwine assisted the hosts, and Miss Patsy Ellis kept the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Crim are on their wedding trip and upon returning to Atlanta, they will reside on Highland avenue. The bride traveled in navy crepe trimmed with white. Blue accessories and a shoulder bouquet of orchids completed her costume.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Reo K. Van Horn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clay, all of Jackson, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Henderson, Miami, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Rityak, Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Redwine, Joseph Redwine, all of Norcross, and Mr. John M. Crim, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Miss Nancy Stair Feted at Luncheon.

Among interesting social affairs yesterday was the luncheon and bridge party at which Mrs. Robert Vance and Miss Emily Evans were hostesses at the home of the former on Peachtree Battle avenue complimenting Miss Nancy Stair, whose marriage to Dr. Marvin Mitchell will be an event of June 29.

Throughout the house a profusion of pastel colored summer flowers were effectively used and invited for the occasion were 12 friends of the hostesses and honor guest.

Freya Must Ask Olaf and Emil About Inviting Hans to Their Home

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS. Alone on a skiing trip on the great Wetterstein mountain after her strenuous first year's medical examinations, Freya Roth is rescued from a group of angry peasants by Hans Breiner, peasant himself, to whom Freya is instantly attracted. Despite the fact that her father, Dr. Johann Roth, celebrated scientist, is Jewish, and her mother a gentle, German aristocrat, Freya has never known anything but love and unity in her home. Now the shadow of Hitler looms over her native Germany, and she is amazed when her stepbrothers become Nazi Acclaimers, plying her from the scene of her danger at the hands of the angry peasants whom she has prevented from killing a hare. Hans asserts that he is a Communist. It is Freya's first encounter with a Communist, but, immediately attracted to him for his evident sincerity, Freya listens to his philosophy of the brotherhood of man. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XII.

It was true that sometimes Rudi envied his father his ability to express the wealth of his mind; for Rudi, feeling his brain swell up and expand with the jungle-swift productivity of youth, was shackled by being inarticulate. Nevertheless, his envy made no barrier between them, and knew that he fully realized a young brain is as good as an old one, though like a new shoe, it pinches its wearers a little, until it has been worn long enough to find expansion.

Rudi heard the door click softly, and saw his mother come into the room; instantly pain entered with her.

Rudi was her youngest child, born late in her maturity out of a great love, so that it was perhaps not surprising that he felt himself almost too seriously a part of her. Freya was too old for him to play with, his brothers older still, and there was no other child in his world, so that his mother, turning herself swiftly into a playfellow to meet his need, was, in his mind, the youngest and nearest of them all.

She was so near that her pain instantly pricked the bubble of his joy. She paused a moment, looking round her as she always did on entering their family living room, not to interrupt or disturb, but always to second and reinforce the life that was already there; very cautiously she moved the reading lamp to a better position for Emil's eyes, then passing the Bechstein, laid a light hand on Olaf's swiveling shoulder, swaying for a moment, as if she were passing into the music with him.

She shot an admiring glance at Rudi, and the Christmas tree, before she settled herself by her little sewing-table and drew out an unfinished frock to work on, for one of her poor children.

These were all usual activities, but the consciousness of pain was not usual.

Rudi gazed at her anxiously from the top of his step ladder. Had she one of her headaches? She was not sewing peacefully, her thread caught in knots and broke, she used short, jerky movements quite unnatural to her. She might very well have tied ribbon round glass animals and packets of sweets, and handed them up to Rudi, instead of putting the chocolates out of his reach on the distant sideboard and pouncing down at her father's knees, by the stove.

Freya was usually helpful to Rudi, though he never swallowed any advice or interference from her, so that he felt distinctly hurt by her ignoring his marvelous scheme of decoration for the tree. She might at least have noticed that behind the star was a real light.

Nobody moved or spoke, until Olaf had finished the Moonlight Sonata. The last storm notes died slowly down, and left the room curiously lifeless. The figures of his family might have been waxwork, and the only sounds were the faint vent of flames in the china stove, or the occasional snap of a branch springing out of his fingers. His mother had stopped sewing.

Johann Roth gravely lifted his heavy head and spoke at last. "Olaf, my son," he said slowly, "your music gives us all great pleasure. You have not had much time to practice lately, yet your tone remains firm, and there is great sympathy and tenderness in your playing. Technique—practice—training—these are all very important parts of any art—no scientists dare underestimate them, nevertheless there is a final gift—a gift that lies in the artist himself."

"A work of art is only a work of art when it is created by the spirit of the person himself. You believe this, I know? To a musician, his music is as organic as the heart within his breast. We do well not to underestimate the creative part of us—we do well to trust it rather than to any other part."

Johann Roth paused. Olaf turned round on his music stool and faced his stepfather as if he already knew that the professor's words were but the preface to an opposition of their wills; and as if he were arming himself to withstand both the wisdom and the underlying tenderness of his father's voice.

Emil glanced up quickly from his English grammar. "Awfully bad people," he announced trenchantly, "are awfully good musicians! Look at Wagner! and the other way round! Only Bach was both—and you aren't going to have more than one Bach, are you? If you're going to trust to people's playing the way they really are, you won't have a leg to stand on, Father."

"Bad—good," said his stepfather a little impatiently; "these blacks and whites have never interested me. Why should we limit ourselves in this manner? There is something beyond good and evil—an intrinsic quality which is the creative mind—and when we reach it we find it safer to deal with than all men's categories. Olaf, I hope that you have the creative mind, and will allow yourself to act from it? We are living in a time, when out of defeat and poverty of heart, man clings to slogans, and sinks his powers into the exhaustion of obedience. He lets his creative mind sleep, since he finds it too much trouble to awaken it. I ask something bigger of you both, than this—and more energetic!

"You are Nazis! You a Brown Shirt—your brother Emil a Storm Trooper! You know that your mother and I have never by word or deed, objected to this symbolism on your part. We accept it, and what it stands for, without criticism."

"You and Emil have found something that your youth can serve. Save it, we'll then serve you; beyond this service there is still something more to give, and something that as thinkers, we have a right to demand of you both—this something is tolerance for the opinions of others. Can you not give us this also?"

Olaf was silent. Rudi, turning on his step ladder to look better at him, was frightened at the strange, set look he saw upon his eldest brother's face. It was a stiffened look, as if someone had dragged a rigid mask over his youthful features. Emil's face, too, wore the same patterned expression, as if they had both been turned out of the same mould, and yet they had no physical likeness to each other.

"Father," Olaf said after a long pause, "there are moments in a man's life—as in a country's—when I do not think thought should come first. Moments when instinct is safer to trust to—instinct following the lead of instant obedience! At such times the heart acts quicker—and more justly than the mind. To think of tolerance at these moments, would be a disgrace. What is it that you are asking us to tolerate? That must be the real point at issue."

"I am asking you to tolerate a thought entirely different from your own—and an instinct different from your own as well, since I am quite unable to differentiate between thought and instinct."

A curious sternness had crept into Johann Roth's voice, his bushy eyebrows met above his shining eyes, and Rudi thought his father looked like a wise old goat peering out from a deep cave. "These instincts," Johann Roth went on, "that you divorce from reason, and imagine to be safer, are on the contrary indivisible from thought, and never safe without it. It is the aim of a man that makes his character, and let him beware that he is not deceived into thinking his aim other than it is—for whatever his aim he will follow it with all the powers that he has!"

"There is an such thing as character apart from aim. What is this instinct you try to separate from reason? In an animal instinct is the sum of his traditions, forced by emergency to flash into appropriate action. All young animals are fearless until their mother has taught them where danger lies. Their future actions are conditioned by their thoughts upon these dangers. A man's superiority over an animal—in so far as he is superior—lies in the creative way in which he adjusts himself to each emergency. To follow orders, to accept any prompting blindly from within or from without, is to ignore and to injure this deeper power. Beware, Olaf and Emil, how you blind your creative power, for all man's progress depends upon it!"

"I've got no more sense than a drunkard. I know spring onions are going to make me sick as a dog, but I always let my appetite run away with my judgment."

"It is exactly in times of emergency that I dispute that right," Olaf said firmly. "Emil and I have accepted the rule of our leader. Where he leads, we follow—what he commands we obey. Our freedom lies in our choice of him. We have made this choice and it satisfies us! We are intolerant—and we must be intolerant of anything or anyone who opposes our leader's orders."

A silence fell upon the room. Rudi slowly descended from his ladder, depositing his basket within reach of the shepherds, as well as Olaf's and Emil's. He, too, might be called upon to make a choice. Hitherto, like his sister, Freya, Rudi had not taken politics seriously. He attended a school kept by a modern-minded teacher, free and creative in his handling of his trust, nor would the headmaster countenance in his teachers any teaching that showed a political bias.

Still Rudi vaguely knew that there were boys with Nazi parents who adored Hitler; and other boys whose parents were not Nazi, and who feared him. Rudi sat down soberly upon his cushioned green mound, shifting a lamb or a king every now and then, to give himself countenance, for though none of his family would dispute his right to join in their discussion, the idea of being as grown-up as he might have to be, if he took an active part in it, was slightly unnerving to him. His mother was the next to speak, she had put away her sewing, and was leaning forward, with the pain Rudi had felt in her heart, now visible in her eyes. In spite of the pain, she spoke in a low, clear voice, very resolutely. "Olaf and Emil," she began, "I cannot speak with the wisdom of your father. I wish that I could, but speak I must—since what I feel—may be important to you. We have been a happy family, in spite of the fact that we are divided by different strains of blood and race. I want you to ask yourselves this: 'Have these differences ever hurt you; until now?' My husband's parents were Jews; until a year ago did you ever suffer from this fact? I do not think that you did! I have felt in your hearts only respect and deep affection for the man I love, and I have felt in my husband's heart only respect and affection for my two older sons. You are my sons. Are Adolf Hitler and his theories more to you than your mother's peace of mind, and the happiness of our family life together? I do not ask you to give up Hitler. What I am asking you is exactly the opposite—it is not to give up Hitler. You will say I exaggerate, but I beg of you to ask yourselves this question as if it were now the actual truth—before the time comes when it will be true! Your father and I do not like tests. We would have put no such questions to you, had not an accident forced us to choose between doing a wrong to one member of our family, or losing our harmony as a home by an open division. My sons, must it come to such a division between us?"

"Well, let's hear exactly what the test is," Emil asked brusquely. "We've told you our point of view, and we know yours, but as far as I can see, we needn't do anything about this famous difference of ours, unless you've got something concrete to put up your sleeve? If you have, hadn't we better know first what it is—and do our deciding about divisions and household peace afterwards?"

Olaf nodded agreement; and then Rudi saw him turn his eyes on Freya—as if he knew already that she was part of this test they were talking about—and Freya, who sat like a frozen bird, clenched and still against her father's knee, now roused herself to look at Olaf. It was a terribly sad look Rudi thought, a hard lump rising in his own throat, as if they were saying a long goodbye to each other.

"You know what Mother means," she said in a low, urgent voice. "I suppose you must have guessed it—in the Hitler—when I didn't rise to give the Hitler salute? That was when I knew! I knew suddenly—when you all got up—that I couldn't—and that I never could! I don't believe in Hitler! I don't know if I'm a Communist or not—but I have a friend with it, and I do believe that to share and share alike working together for the good of the whole people—is better than being a Nazi, with some people keeping a lot of private property in a country where others are nearly starving!"

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Previous to 10:15 a. m. is an adverse period for matters of art, beauty and for dealings with the opposite sex. Affairs are likely to become confused, misunderstandings are not difficult.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Today between 9:45 a. m. and 10:12 p. m. business dealings, finances, consultations, contacting professional people are favored. At this time you should be able to express your best personality, and therefore can put your best foot forward in the above matters.

May 21st and July 20th (GEMINI)—This is a very uncertain day, when you may either be looking through rose-colored glasses or just don't know exactly what you want.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Old friends, elderly people, works already under way may bring you problems before 3:30 p. m. and is a time to continue with ordinary pursuits, and not undertake new obligations. After 2:30 p. m. will be a favorable time for practical, substantial and dependable ideas, provided you avoid sudden changes and recklessness.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The entire day is unfavorable for domestic affairs, matters connected with land, for seeking favors and for dealing with older people and those who are thought of as very conservative.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Test and strain are likely to be placed upon affairs that should require a good nature before 12:10 noon, and family affairs, heart interests and work pertaining to beauty are likely to encounter a lack of harmony.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Today, haste and lack of caution should be avoided. After 4:30 should be favorable for domestic and personal affairs, seeking favors and contacting influential people, but care should be used around water and liquids.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Before 5:30 p. m., which takes in the greater part of the day, be deliberate and careful in your activities. You are likely to have strong impulses to start something, or be overly enthusiastic, and unimpulsive you are careful these impulses will overcome your reason.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Today until 5:30 p. m. is apt to be a dull, uninteresting or depressing time, when you will need all the fact and diplomacy you possess. After 5:30 p. m. new ways and means of financing, business and professional interests, are favored.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The entire day and evening is most favorable for travel, for business related to finances, for dealings with professional people and for matters related to education, promises, agreements and communications.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The combined influences operating throughout the entire day and evening tend toward annoyances, disruption and dissatisfaction, with delays or unexpected difficulties. This is therefore a good day in which to be conservative and do not undertake aggressive or risky ventures.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Too much power is likely to be released in talk, in action and not enough thought given to health previous to 4:45 p. m. Use care to avoid accidents, harsh talk and entering into things too quickly.

WGST Will INTERRUPT All Programs to Broadcast Important News Flashes

NEWS FLASHES of all important happenings—from all over the world—will come to you first over WGST. This is assured because we have at our disposal the combined news gathering facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System's entire staff of domestic and foreign correspondents and their strategically located short-wave stations. . . . The Atlanta Constitution's three globe-circling news services as well as their entire reporting staff. . . . In addition to these we have Transradio News Service machines located right in our own studios. . . . This array of unsurpassed facilities means the quickest, most accurate and complete radio news service that any station can possibly give.

These facilities will be utilized fully. In addition to giving our listeners more than 15 regularly scheduled newscasts each day, we will interrupt any program regardless of its nature to broadcast important news bulletins.

Take advantage of this greater newscasting service. Keep your dial tuned to WGST (890 kc.) at all times!

Peace Seats Are Reversed at Compiegne

ROLES REVERSED

In 1918, Marshal Foch, seated in this railway coach in Compiegne Forest, handed armistice terms to the Germans. Yesterday, Hitler handed his terms to the French.

IRON HEELS

MEMORIES OF '18

WHAT FUTURE?

One wonders if this will ever become a target for foreign dive bombers. This birdman's view shows New York's enlarged "front garden" of city hall, at Woolworth building's feet.

PREPARED

Grim of face, Prime Minister Winston Churchill has warned England that the "Battle of France" is at end and that the "Battle of Britain" can be expected to break out at any moment.

ON THE MOVE

As war events foreshadowed the beginning of the "Battle of Britain," London again began evacuating school children who had drifted back to the city. This group of mothers said goodbyes outside the Hugh Myddleton school in London. These mothers are staying behind for the worst.

OFF TO SAFETY

Mother stayed behind but bravely bade a temporary farewell to her two sons as they left London with thousands of other children for a "safer" area in the country.
